Wise Men, Magicians—Same Thing
Learn From Red Grange
The President's Plan

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by Star Company.

PERCIVAL S. HILL, head of the American Tobacco Company, died suddenly yesterday. He typified the modern business man, with his extraordinary energy, never sparing himself, increasing instead of diminishing, with passing years, the load on his shoulders.

His death will be regretted by the army of men and women working in his great organization. He appreciated those that worked with him.

A LEARNED BRITISHER, translating the Bible, finds a mistake in the King James version. The men that the star guided to Bethlehem were not kings or "wise men," they were magicians.

In ancient days, the difference was slight. Unless a man was a magician the superstitious people thought little of his wisdom. That is why founders of new religions have been compelled to perform miracles, or pretend performance.

THE GREAT KEPLER working at his cosmic problems, depending on the emperor for money and protection, had to pretend that he could read the stars and tell the emperor's fortune, warning him or encouraging him, according to the stars. For the magnificent wisdom of Kepler, one of the world's six greatest astronomers and mathematicians, the emperor had little use.

A DISTINGUISHED young pile driver, Red Grange, football marvel, passes at one jump from a job behind an ice wagon to the millionaire class. He makes $30,000 a day playing professional football, and yesterday signed a contract to make a moving picture for $300,000. Those that hire him are wise. Ten million would gladly pay to see Red Grange run across the screen that wouldn't pay five cents to see an authentic picture of Socrates drinking the hemlock, or Archimedes running down the street.

YOUNG GENTLEMEN will observe, however, that the million to be made by Red Grange this year will not come from muscle only. The football marvel gives half his winnings to a manager who does the thinking.

Red Grange is not as foolish as the feet that rebelled against the head in the old fable.

THE BRITISH propose hard terms for Italy's debt payment, at least $20,000,000 a year as a start.

Many Italians, remembering the price that Italy paid for British coal during the war, remembering especially that Italian neutrality alone made the victory of the Marne possible, would expect better treatment from the British.

Had Italy not been neutral at first, finally coming over to the Allies at a great sacrifice, the Kaiser might be in London on a newly carpeted throne now, instead of being in Holland.

THE PRESIDENT says farmers can solve their prob-

Gov. Fuller Pushes Probe of Girl's Death

COOLIDGE TELLS CONGRESS TO RESPECT STATE RIGHTS

SUMMONS DOCTOR OF HOSPITAL IN WHICH JESSIE LYMAN DIED

Investigation of the death of Miss Jessie Lyman, secretary to a Massachusetts Agricultural School professor, who died from what is believed to be illegal surgery, took a new turn today when Dr. Clarence I. Sparks, associate medical examiner of Hampshire County, was called to Boston to talk with Governor Fuller about the case.

District Attorney John Hammond of Northampton issued a statement today to the effect that investigation showed that no Holyoke surgeon was involved in the death of the Easthampton girl, as Dr. Sparks has been quoted as saying.

The dead girl's mother, Mrs. William H. Lyman, sobbed a demand for vengeance today and declared that she knew the name of her daughter's betrayer.

Seated in her little farmhouse in the shadow of the Berkshires, the white-haired mother declares:

"I know the man who brought my girl to this. She met him at Baysteadt, where she was working. They met three years ago. The man was married.

"I blame him for my daughter's troubles. Jessie never had a sweetheart. This man, knowing he was married, should have let her alone. But he didn't. He deserted his wife for her. He is now hiding in Connecticut."

Governor Fuller, having been told the facts leading up to the death of the girl, has set in motion the wheels of an investigation that will be sweeping in its effect.

The girl was for a week a patient in the private hospital conducted by Dr. Clarence I Sparks of Easthampton, associate medical examiner

NEW COURT ABUSES LISTED BY GOODWIN

While Attorney-General Jay R. Benton was getting busy with Police Commissioner Wilson on an investigation of twenty-two more jail 'dodgers," whose names were handed him today by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin, the registrar himself was assailed in a second sharp attack by Captain Timothy Leahy of the Cambridge police.

Captain Leahy demanded an apology from Goodwin, who accused the police officer of telling untruths in the argument over the case of Max Bornstein of Allston, and besides threatening the registrar with legal action of he refused to retract, Leahy declared Goodwin himself mis-

Lowell, Dec. 8.—After being scolded by his mother, Henry E. Palisoul, fourteen years old, shot himself in the chest with a ..22-calibre rifle today and died almost instantly.

The boy was scolded by his mother, Mrs. Anna Palisoul, of No. 178 West London street, because he did not get home until 11:30 last night.

Without a word, young Palisoul returned to his bedroom and a few moments later his mother and brothers heard a shot.

Henry Palisoul was a student in the Vocational High School. Chums said he spent last evening with They also declared that he was extremely sensitive to criticism.

Mrs. Palisoul, who is a widow, was placed under care of a physician after the tragedy.

PRESIDENT URGES ALL TO OBEY DRY ACT; ASKS FOR CONTROL OF COAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—President Coolidge informed Congress today that the state of the Nation is uniformly good—that the country is in the midst of peace, progress and prosperity, and that the best way to continue along this pleasant road is for the new Congress to refrain from any spending sprees or drastic legislation.

Accompanying this optimistic message was a series of recommendations, touching upon almost every line of government activity, at home and abroad, and all designed to keep the American ship of state moving in present channels.

The President's chief warning to Congress was to refrain from any further encroachments upon the rights of States to regulate their own affairs. There is danger, he said, of centralizing too much authority in Washington.

"Local self-government," the President declared, "is one of our most precious possessions. The wiser policy is to leave the localities, so far as we can, possessed of their own sources of revenue and charged with their own obligations."

In advising Congress this year, President Coolidge departed from the custom re-established by Woodrow Wilson, and did not personally appear before the legislators in joint session. Instead of following the footsteps of Wilson and Harding to the rostrum, he transmitted his

TO BLOCK KIP IF HE SEEKS PARIS DIVORCE

New York, Dec. 8 (I.N.S.).—Alice Jones Rhinelander, victor in the marriage annulment suit brought by her aristocratic husband, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, is speeding to Florida today. Her mother, Mrs. George Jones, accompanied her.

Young Rhinelander also has disappeared.

Lee Parsons Davis, Mrs. Rhinelander's attorney, announced this afternoon that his client will block any attempt on the part of her husband to obtain a divorce in Paris. Davis pointed out that under the French law, Mrs. Rhinelander would have to establish a residence in France and this, he said, she will refuse to do.

GRIEVING MOTHER SEEKS VENGEANCE FOR DEATH OF DAUGHTER

in the Second District of Hampshire County.

Following her week's stay in the Sparks hospital she was sent to the Dickinson hospital in Northampton to die.

It is known that Governor Fuller has a number of complaints against Dr. Sparks, but the nature of these complaints has not been revealed.

The State police, who have turned over their evidence in connection with the tragic death of the pretty young college secretary to the Governor, declare their investigation has revealed a prominent man as responsible for the condition of the girl.

"One Sunday night when she got ready to go back to the college (it was on November 1) she had her grip packed and she came to kiss me good-bye," said the mother today.

"She threw her arms around my neck, broke out crying and said in that terrible, heart-broken way, 'Oh, Mother.'"

Here the white-haired mother, for the first time, bowed her head and wept quietly in the remembrance. Then she recovered her composure again and went on:

"I was surprised and I asked her what the trouble was, but her brother was calling for her to hurry out to the machine, and she would not tell me. She brightened up and kissed me and ran out to the car.

"I know she wanted to tell her mother and I know that if the time had not been so short for her to catch her train, she would finally have told me.

"We never saw Jessie again alive. I got word on Thursday that she was dying and I rushed down to the hospital. Jessie was just gasping for breath and I asked her then to tell mother the whole story and I told her everything would be all right.

"'No mother; it is all my fault,' she said. 'I am going to get better and I will be home soon. I've passed the worst of it now.' She suffered terribly, and she never spoke again.

"The beast deserted her during that terrible week, just as he had deserted his wife. He never even went to see Jessie at the hospital. And he called up her domitory at the college to make believe he didn't know where she was.

"That man told my husband, after Jessie died, that he had gone the week before to Holyoke to try and get Jessie a doctor, but could not find one.

SOLD RUM TO KEEP HUSBAND'S SAWMILL GOING

Mrs. Hilda Stone, in jail at Newport, Vt., denies she is "Queen of Bootleggers." Her pictures are a bit unusual for the wife of a Vermont sawmill owner.

"If I were their queen, do you think the bootleggers would let me stay here in this jail for the want of $1,500 bail?" This picture, too, is somewhat out of the usual run in the Green Mountain range.

"Good night, by the candle light," is another one of Hilda's favorite pictures. She didn't make any money, but she must have some fun.

'BAIL ME OR I'LL TELL! SHE SAYS

Newport, Vt., Dec. 8.—Stone walls and iron bars took all the thrill out of playing hide-and-seek with the law, and after a night in jail pretty Mrs. Hilda Stone, Queen of the north country rum-runners, today declared that if her $1,500 bail was not raised by nightfall she would "turn up the whole gang of rum-runners."

As a result, agents of the gang scurried in frantic search for $1,500, some of them even traveling to Springfield, Mass., which the local customs men declare is the other end of the rum-running line.

"They get me out of here before I spend another night in jail or I spill the whole works," was the unqueenly dictum.

"This talk about my being the queen of the rum runners is all bosh," she said with a saucy flip of her pretty head.

"I had gone to town to pay a bill and was on my way back home when the officers arrested me. I admit the man I was riding with is a rum runner.

"I have been arrested before and fined for transporting liquor. I paid my fine. I went into the rum-running game because the man I love was in financial difficulties. I thought this was the quickest and surest way of making easy money.

"After my arrest I decided to quit the game and have not been in it since.

Mrs. Stone denied the stories of the officers who arrested her that she had several addresses. She declares she lives with her husband, Frank Stone, a sawmill owner.

According to the officers who arrested her, Stone is the man whose business was failing when his wife entered the rum-running business.

Woman Plunges 3 Stories Off Fire Escape

Mrs. Frances Gormatail, forty-two years old, fell three stories to the ground while trying to enter her tenement at No. 65 Brighton street, West End, from a fire escape.

She suffered severe injuries to her chest, back and both hands and feet, but is recovering at the Haymarket Square Relief Station.

During her absence at work Mrs. Gormatail's children left their home, locking the doors.

Courted and Now Asks $5,000 for Time He Lost

Springfield, Dec. 8.—A broken heart time lost in courtship and money spent on presents was set at $5,000, today by Frederick T. Clements, 34, Holyoke milkman, in a heart balm suit filed in Superior Court here today against Miss Edith Sherman, 27, clerk in a Holyoke store.

Miss Sherman, according to Clements, deserted him suddenly and without any reason.

DE VALERA COHORTS OPPOSE BOUNDARY PLAN

Dublin, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Fifty Republican deputies, including Eamon De Valera, met here today and unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the Irish boundary agreement. A committee, including De Valera, Tom Johnson and Austin Stack, was appointed to devise the most effective means of defeating the proposals.

LULL IN DEER HUNT ON CAPE

Carver, Dec. 8.—Comparative quiet reigned today in the Myles Standish Forest reservation where 150 deer were made legal targets for nimrods after years of protection.

The big first-day crowd of hunters, many of them from out of the State, were not in evidence today, and hunters in large numbers are not expected again until the coming week-end. The open season closes Saturday night.

Two hunters were arrested today for not having licenses, but they were released after they handed over $15 apiece for the necessary credentials. It was explained that they were aliens and therefore taxed at a higher rate than most of the hunters.

The busiest man in Carver is Paul C. Blankenship, who, as game warden of the township, is checking-up on the licenses of every hunter he can find.

lems, or some of them, by co-operative marketing.

Could the President guarantee the farmers against prosecution, based on restraint of trade, if farmers combined, established market places and fixed prices?

A GOVERNMENT board now tells moving picture men that they may not exhibit their own pictures in their own theatres.

If that were sound—of course it is not sound—farmers could not sell their own products in their own markets, which is what they SHOULD do.

AND WHAT, if anything, would government do to help the farmers? A great deal is done for railroads. A government board watches over them, raises rates when the railroad lacks reasonable profits, and says to the public, "Pay or walk."

Would the government show interest of that sort in farmers and make the public pay for wheat and potatoes, enough to pay the farmer well?

CANADA DISCOVERS a deposit of helium gas and the Canadian government has bought the three producing wells, keeping for itself all helium rights.

In Canada the government will keep and work these wells for the public benefit, and there will be no Canadian helium Teapot Dome affair.

Give our Canadian brothers credit for that.

THE District of Columbia Court of Appeals decides that the indictments in connection with the stealing of the naval oil reserves must stand.

It would be surprising, gratifying and new if the fact should be established that in this country a man cannot go free even when he steals one hundred million dollars. The general impression was that anything from one million up was quite safe.

SHAKEUP OF POLICE NEAR

The long-heralded shift of patrolmen at police stations throughout the city is now a matter of hours, according to those preparing the transfers at police headquarters.

Tonight Commissioner Wilson will call before him thirty of the applicants who have been certified as new patrolmen by the Civil Service Commission. Last night he looked over twenty-seven of these new guardians of the law.

There are to be fifty new policemen, in any event, and the divisions are all so short-handed that the commissioner and Superintendent Crowley will make every effort to have more men assigned for duty.

GEN. ELY SCOFFS AT AIR THEORY OF PRESIDENT

Washington, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The Army's reply to Colonel William Mitchell's charges of incompetence, neglect and near-treason in the conduct of aviation was begun today before the Army court-martial trying the air crusader.

Major General Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the Army War College, was called by the prosecution counsel to open its counter-attack, while ten other major generals, two brigadiers and a squad of lesser ranking officers were held in reserve. They will be thrown into the offensive as the court battle goes on, extending probably into next week.

General Ely struck directly at Colonel Mitchell's unified air service plan. "I am opposed to the separate air force," he said. "It would take away power from the commmander of the whole which he needs to accomplish the best results."

Asked whether the air force or some other arm would be used first in time of war, General Ely said:

"The infantry would be first. That is the judgment of all military informed people. An air force can't hit and hold."

Representative Reid, counsel for Mitchell, asked General Ely if he believed "the development of aircraft indicates that our national defense must be supplemented, if not dominated, by aviation."

"No," said the General.

"Do you know that President Coolidge made that statement recently?"

"I don't care who made it."

On motion of the prosecution all reference to the presidential statement was stricken out.

When Colonel Sherman Moreland, the trial judge advocate, asked the general for an opinion as to the "effect of conduct like Colonel Mitchell's upon the discipline and morale of the army," dfense counsel objected and the court ruled the question out.

Asked on cross-examination if he realized the importance of air forces the witness replied:

"Yes. They are one of the most important elements of defense or offense."

AXE-SWINGER FREED ON PROMISE TO SIGN PLEDGE

John A. Connolly, Somerville's axe swinger, must sign the pledge to abstain from liquor today and take it to Judge Sturtevant.

Connolly, a powerfully-built man, was charged only with drunkenness, though according to witnesses, he drove out three families with brandished axe last night in Gilman terrace, Somerville, and attempted to use his weapon against two patrolmen.

Connolly was repentant today and when he promised to sign the pledge the judge placed him on probation, telling Mrs. Connolly to report any signs of liquor.

CAN'T CARRY LIQUOR ON TROLLEY, JUDGE RULES

Carrying liquor on a street car is illegal transportation in the meaning of the prohibition law, Judge Parmenter ruled today in Municipal Court, in the case of Adolph Levi of Barton street, West End. Levi was fined $50 for the transportation and $50 more for keeping and exposing liquor for sale, and in addition was given a sentence of three months on the second charge. He appealed. Levi was arrested by Patrolmen Mahony and Carr of Joy street station, after he had left a car on Causeway street, carrying a jug of moonshine in a bag.

HUB MERCHANT ON TRIAL IN $51,000 FINANCE FRAUD

Charged with larceny of $51,275.46 from the Manufacturers' Finance Company, by selling fictitious accounts, John H. Sullivan, Bedford street wholesale drygoods merchant, went on trial today before Judge Fosdick and a jury in Suffolk Superior Court. Sullivan is also accused, with Harry I. Wolk, of conspiracy to steal. It is charged that the exchange for the alleged fictitious accounts turned over to the company, he received 77 per cent. of their supposed value, and was to receive the remaining 23 per cent. when they were collected.

Coolidge Coat Gone; He Didn't Miss It

Wahsington, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—President Coolidge saw in the Chicago papers today that he had lost his overcoat yesterday in Chicago and a little later he was informed by the Hotel Sherman that it had been found and was on its way to Washington.

The coat, a heavy one, carried along for the President to wear in an open automobile, was left behind by accident, and the President was not aware of it until he read this morning's newspapers.

quoted court records in the Bornstein case.

Goodwin admitted today that he renewed Bornstein's license in spite of an adverse report on the motorist from Chief of Police McBride of Cambridge, following Bornstein's conviction in East Cambridge District Court.

CONVICTED AS DRUNK.

But while the registrar declares that his records show Bornstein was convicted merely of driving away after an accident, Captain Leahy produced the court papers to prove that Bornstein was convicted of driving under the influence of liquor.

"This is the first time I have ever been called a liar," said Captain Leahy, referring to Goodwin's declaration that he was telling untruths. "If an apology is not forthcoming I shall take legal steps. Moreover, I have had absolutely nothing to do with politicians as the registrar intimates."

Benton promised an immediate checkup on the new cases brought to his attention by Goodwin. These cases are in addition to that of Charles Roper, alleged automobile thug, who Goodwin charges has constantly escaped imprisonment, in spite of a long series of offenses, because in part of the activity of John I. Fitzgerald in his behalf.

Registrar Goodwin informed the Attorney General that in each of the twenty-two cases each man has been repeatedly before the courts for various felonies and misdemeanors, but has avoided the penalties imposed by law for those offenses.

GOODWIN CHARGES PLOT.

The motor registrar charged to the Boston Evening American today that "malignant influences" are at work about him.

"At 9:05 last night," he said, "my telephone went out of order at home. I called the telephone office and they were unable to tell me what the matter was, except that the line was out of order.

"This morning when I got up, I found the phone was all right again. I called the telephone office once more and insisted on knowing what the trouble had been and who had repaired the line, but was unsuccessful in my quest."

In replying to Captain Leahy's criticism, Goodwin again attacked John I. Fitzgerald, State Representative and city councillor-elect of the West End, saying:

"Captain Leahy is on duty in that part of Cambridge which is in the Second Suffolk Senatorial District, which Jihn I. Fitzgerald has represented in the past, and in which the Hendricks Club influence is strong.

"It must be remembered that John I. Fitzgerald does not confine his efforts to the probation office and the district attorney's office, but is a visitor in those police stations that will harbor him."

REPLIES TO LEAHY.

"I had a perfect right to renew his license in December," said Goodwin. "However, I did not renew it until January. Later I took it away because one of my inspectors reported Bornstein was of questionable physical ability, but Bornstein got his license once more when he produced a physician's certificate that he was able to drive.

"I am not surprised at Captain Leahy's attack, as attacks are liable to come from any quarter now. This is a fight to the finish, however."

WHITE, KEVILLE, LUFKIN NOMINATED IN CONGRESS

Nominations sent to Congress today by President Coolidge included those of Thomas W. White of Newton, who took the place of Mayor-elect Malcolm Nichols as collector of internal revenue for Massachusetts, and United States Marshal William J. Keville and Wilfred W. Lufkin, collector of the port, both renominated. Dwight Hall of Dover, N. H., was nominated for comptroller of customs in Boston. Alfred J. Chretien was named as United States marshal for the district of New Hampshire.

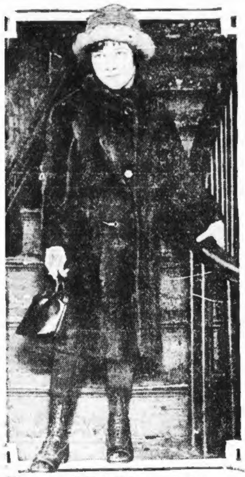
LITTLE CAMBRIDGE GIRL CURED OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS AFTER PRAYERS TO ST. THERESA



Eleven-year-old Mary McIntyre, who has recovered the use of her legs after years of infantile paralysis.

Since her recovery it has been little Mary's delight to assist her mother. She is already an expert baker.

Washing dishes, sweeping up and writing letters take up much of Mary's waking hours when she is not studying at the parochial school or doing the home lessons prescribed by the sisters.

Little Mary, Cured by Prayers, Sings Again Playing 'Mother'

A little "mother's helper" is eleven-year-old Mary McIntyre these days, for Mary now is so much improved and her once-withered legs are becoming so strong that she is becoming vastly skilled in household pursuits.

You all remember Mary, of course—remember the miraculous cure visited upon her only a few weeks ago at the shrine of St. Theresa, "The Little Flower of Jesus."

Over in the McIntyre home in Otis street, Cambridge, Mary today is a far different girl than the pathetic figure that began her appeal to the saint of youth, and she sings now as she works about the home—helping mother in every phase of housework.

From birth the little girl was afflicted with one of the greatest handicaps of modernity, infantile paralysis. She was bed-ridden for two years, and up to a short time ago wore heavy iron braces on her legs.

Then came the cure.

Mary, with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James McIntyre, made a novena to St. Theresa in the Sacred Heart Church, Cambridge.

Devoutly and fervently the three sent up their plea for nine days to the kindly saint.

And on the last day little Mary gazed down awe-struck at her legs. The heavily-clamped braces had come unloosened, the iron itself was broken as though by the stroke of a giant axe.

The child timidly tried her weight on one leg, then the other, then sobbing, fell into her mother's arms.

The cure had been wrought.

Today the child is practically free from the effects of her terrible disease. Each day she grows stronger. She attends the parochial school, plays with her girl friends, stands well in her classes, romps a bit, helps her mother with the housework, is in fact normal and healthy in every way.

Visitors hearing of her cure have visited Mary, coming from all parts of the country, and she tells her simple story.

"Youth has no room for gratitude," a sage once said. Let him look to Cambridge. Each and every evening, sun or rain, snow or storm, a little figure enters the church, makes her way to the niche devoted to "The Little Flower of Jesus," and offers up her thanksgiving.

WANT U. S. IN ARMS PARLEY

Geneva, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—The League of Nations Council today decided to invite the United States, Russia and Germany, to participate in the work of the special commission which is to prepare for an international disarmament conference.

Washington, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Comment by Wsahington officials on the League of Nations decision to invite the United States, Russia and Germany to participate in the special commission on international disarmament will await careful study of the text by President Coolidge. Congress, in ratifying the German peace treaty, imposed limitations on the President to send delegates abroad.

DEATH ENDS SAILOR'S WORLD TRIP IN CANOE

Bangor, Me., Dec. 8 (A.P.)—A bold attempt of a daring sailor to circumnavigate the globe by canoe has failed.

With the discovery of the body of Rudolph P. Roehrle on the shore of Chesapeake Bay has come to an end a voyage started at Brewer, near here, October 16, and which Roehrle had hoped would bring him to the principal countries of the world on a trip that was to have covered 50,000 miles and taken three years.

Three times before Roehrle had circled the Horn, but in larger craft.

Italy Accepts War Debt Plan

Rome, Dec. 8 (I.N.S.)—The Italian Senate today approved the Washington agreement in settlement of the Italian debt to the United States.

COOL WAVE ON WAY TO HUB

Although cloudy weather is predicted for today and Wednesday, with a noticeable drop in temperature tomorrow afternoon and night, neither storms nor extreme cold weather is indicated.

The entire country is enjoying mild, clear weather. The only indication of storm disturbances is in the lakes region, where slight snow flurries are reported. Officials expect, however, that this storm will sweep northward, barely touching New England.

The mercury at the local station dropped several degrees during the night and at 10 o'clock this morning was standing at 39, the minimum for the last twenty-four hours. It is probable the thermometer will continue to drop slowly.

MILTON POLICE IN NEW HUNT FOR JAMES MACLARY

In one more attempt to solve the mysterious disappearance of James L. Maclary in East Milton twelve days ago, twenty patrolmen, wearing high hip rubbers boots, beat through the lowlands of Milton today, led by Sergeant Shields. The terrain searched has many pools and streams in marshland.

FOUR BOSTON MEN ARE HELD AS RUM-RUNNERS

Danbury, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—State troopers seized four cars, 400 gallons of alcohol and arrested six persons today. Those arrested gave the names of David Leahy, Harold Wilbur and Benjamin Schwartz of Boston, Mrs. Sophia Herschkowitz and son, Oscar, of Brooklyn, and Myer Gallant of Dorchester.

COOLIDGE CALLS ON CONGRESS TO CARRY ON ECONOMIES

RECLASSIFY CIVIL SERVICE; ADHERE TO WORLD COURT

[illegible] and they reached [illegible] through the medium of [illegible]. The absence of the [illegible] robbed the occasion of [illegible] usual color and glamour. [illegible] galleries were jammed with [illegible] notwithstanding.

The message was a lengthy one. [illegible] review of the state [illegible] affairs, Mr. Coolidge [illegible] his subjects one by one [illegible] his recommendations, [illegible] which were:

TAXATION—The new tax bill, [illegible] income taxes approximately in half, should be promptly passed. While approving the bill "in principle," he declared it goes further than he would have gone in increasing exemptions, but largely it is a good bill and should be passed by March 15.

AIR SERVICE—No radical change in the organization of the nation's air service is needed, Colonel William Mitchell to the contrary. He endorsed the Morrow Board report, recommending three new assistant secretaries in the Departments of Commerce, War and Navy, to handle air service matters, creation of two additional brigadier-generals in the Army Air Service, and slight modification of the promotion scheme in the service to allay the discontent of flying officers.

"Our country," said the President, "is not behind in the art of flying."

DISARMAMENT—The Locarno peace pacts constitute a great forward step toward world peace and their natural corollary is further reduction of the world's armament.

America is willing, as always, to call another international armament conference, but at this time the chief problem is armies, not navies, and it is only in Europe that large armies are to be found. Thus, the question is considered largely European and for Europeans to solve. Any steps in this direction will be given American encouragement.

While always willing to co-operate and participate in any sensible move looking toward armament reduction, the United States "would not care to attend a conference which from its location or constituency would in all probability prove futile."

AGRICULTURE—Congress should attempt no legislation of the price-fixing [illegible], either directly or indirectly. The condition of the farmer today is considerably improved, but there are still numerous sore spots that [illegible] better be reached [illegible] cooperative effort than by [illegible] method.

[illegible] to foster and promote cooperative marketing will be introduced [illegible] administration.

"[illegible] is some reason to suppose," said the President, "that a [illegible] prosperity [illegible] would probably [illegible]."

PROHIBITION — The various [illegible] work in enforcing prohibition and not leave the Federal Government to do it all. [illegible] a concurrent duty on the States.

"I request of the people observance, of the public officers, continuing efforts for enforcement, and of Congress favorable action on the budget recommendations for the prosecution of this work."

RAILROADS — Congress should pass legislation permitting wider consolidations under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The railroads as a whole are prosperous, and relations between managements and labor are the best in years.

ECONOMY—Strict economy in public expenditure should be continued with the end in view of retiring the public debt. Taxes cannot be reduced much lower until the enormous annual interest payments are eliminated, and this can only come by reducing the debt.

The Democratic proposal that the public debt be retired in sixty-two years instead of twenty-five, in order to allow more tax reduction, Mr. Coolidge considered unsound and expensive in the long run.

FOREIGN DEBTS—The debt agreements with Italy, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, and Latvia should be promptly ratified. While in the case of Italy and Belgium the terms are more lenient than the government desired, "they represent the best that can be done and the [illegible] settlement that can be secured."

"Wherever sacrifices have been made of money, it will be more than amply returned in understanding and friendship."

WORLD COURT—Under the reservations already proposed, the Senate [illegible] promptly vote American adherence to the World Court. [illegible] court appears to be independent of the League of Nations [illegible] go on functioning if the [illegible] disbanded."

[illegible], the President said, [illegible] NOT be bound by advisory [illegible] rendered by the court, [illegible] morally or legally.

ALIEN PROPERTY—The present status of German-seized property should NOT be altered while negotiations for its final disposition are proceeding.

"For the present we should continue in possession of this property which we hold as security for the settlement of claims due our people and our government."

IMMIGRATION—The present immigration law is a wise one and is working out satisfactorily, and should not be tinkered with. If aliens continue to smuggle themselves into the country in defiance of American laws, an alien registration law may become desirable.

NATIONAL DEFENSE—Congress should pass a selective service act which will permit the conscription in time of war of money and material, as well as of men.

National defense, on the whole, is in good shape. The army of 118,000 men should not be further reduced. It is well equipped and well trained. The navy has its full quota of capital ships.

WAR VETERANS—The Government is spending millions for relief and care of war veterans and Congress should go slow about authorizing further expenditures in the way of general pensions and other emoluments.

MUSCLE SHOALS — Congress should dispose of this property to private interests, either through outright sale or lease, and to that end should create a Commission to receive bids.

"The problem of Muscle Shoals has assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance. If anything were needed to demonstrate the almost utter incapacity of the national government to deal with an industrial and commercial problem it has been provided by our experience with this property."

COAL—Congress should give the President power to intervene in coal strikes. The report of the last Coal Commission, advising this, should be dug up and acted upon.

"The coal industry seems never to have accepted modern methods of adjusting differences between employers and employes."

SHIPPING—Congress should establish one-man control of the government's shipping fleet, with the Shipping Board exercising only regulatory and judicial functions.

RECLAMATION—A policy of co-operation between the States and the government should be encouraged with regard to reclamation. The government should continue planning big projects and leave the details to the States.

WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT—Congress should create some agency to consider waterways development on sound engineering facts.

The government was strongly urged to redeem its pledge to take over the Cape Cod canal.

A Midwest canal connecting Chicago, New Orleans, Kansas City and Pittsburgh, should be laid out and work on the tributaries pushed.

TERRITORIES — Appropriations for territories, particularly Alaska, should be reduced. Federal expenditures in Alaska "appear out of proportion to the population and the amount of production."

In the case of the Philippines, more authority should be given the Governor-General.

CIVIL SERVICE—Civil Service should be broadened to take in postmasters, collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenue, and prohibition agents.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION—The Commission has reformed its rules and methods of doing business and should now be let alone.

GOVERNMENTAL REORGANIZATION—Congress should bring the reorganization bill out of the pigeon-hole, where it was placed, and pass it.

THE NEGRO—The negro is entitled to full liberty and equality before the law and should be accorded it. Negroes are loyal, and should be protected in their rights, "and supported in the peaceful enjoyment of the fruits of their labor."

"It is apparent," said the President, in conclusion, "that we are entering into an era of great general prosperity. It will continue only so long as we use it properly.

"If the people have sufficient moderation and contentment to be willing to improve their condition by enlarging production, eliminating waste, and distributing equitably, a prosperity almost without limit lies before us.

"If the people are to be dominated by selfishness, seeking immediate riches by nonproductive speculation and by wasteful quarreling over the returns from industry, they will be confronted by the inevitable results of depression and privation.

"If they will continue industrious and thrifty, contented with fair wages and moderate profits our prosperity will continue itself indefinitely."

U. S. SHOULD KEEP PLEDGE TO BUY CAPE COD CANAL

Text of President's Message to Congress

In meeting the constitutional requirement of informing the Congress upon the State of the Union it is exceedingly gratifying to report that the general condition is one of progress and prosperity. Here and there are comparatively small and apparently temporary difficulties needing adjustment and improved administrative methods, such as are always to be expected, but in the fundamentals of government and business the results demonstrate that we are going in the right direction. The country does not appear to require radical departures from the policies already adopted so much as it needs a further extension of these policies and the improvement of details. The age of perfection is still in the somewhat distant future, but it is more in danger of being retarded by mistaken government activity than it is from lack of legislation. We are by far the most likely to accomplish permanent good if we proceed with moderation.

In our country the people are sovereign and independent, and must accept the resulting responsibilities. It is their duty to support themselves and support the government. That is the business of the Nation, whatever the charity of the Nation may require. The functions which the Congress is to discharge are not those of local government but of National Government.

Government Economy

The greatest solicitude should be exercised to prevent any encroachment upon the rights of the States or their various political subdivisions. Local self-government is one of our most precious possessions. It is the greatest contributing factor to the stability, strength, liberty, and progress of the Nation. It ought not to be infringed by assault or undermined by purchase. It ought not to abdicate its power through weakness or resign its authority through favor. It does not at all follow that because abuses exist it is the concern of the Federal Government to attempt their reform.

Society is in much more danger from encumbering the National Government beyond its wisdom to comprehend, or its ability to administer, than from leaving the local communities to bear their own burdens and remedy their own evils. Our local habit and custom is so strong, our variety of race and creed is so great, the Federal authority is so tenuous, that the area within which it can function successfully is very limited. The wiser policy is to leave the localities, so far as we can, possessed of their own sources of revenue and charged with their own obligations.

It is a fundamental principle of our country that the people are sovereign. While they recognize the undisputable authority of the state, they have established as its instrument a government of limited powers. They hold inviolate in their own hands the jurisdiction over their own freedom and the ownership of their own property.

That is the legal limitation within which the Congress can act. How it will proceed within this limitation is always a question of policy. When the country is prosperous and free from debt, when the rate of taxation is low, opportunity exists for assuming new burdens and undertaking new enterprises. Such a condition now prevails only to a limited extent. All proposals for assuming new obligations ought to be postponed, unless they are reproductive capital investment or are such as are absolutely necessary at this time.

We still have an enormous debt of over $20,000,000,000, on which the interest and sinking-fund requirements are $1,320,000,000. Our appropriations for the Pension Office and the Veterans' Bureau are $600,000,000. The War and Navy Departments call for $642,000,000. Other requirements, exclusive of the Post Office, which is virtually self-sustaining, brought the appropriations for the current year up to almost $3,100,000,000.

This shows an expenditure of close to $30 for every inhabitant of our country. For the average family of five it means a tax, directly or indirectly paid, of about $150 for national purposes alone. The local tax adds much more. These enormous expenditures ought not to be increased, but through every possible effort they ought to be reduced.

Only one of these great items can be ultimately extinguished. That is the item of our war debt. Already this has been reduced by about $6,000,000,000, which means an annual saving in interest of close to $250,000,000. The present interest charge is about $820,000,000 yearly. It would seem to be obvious that the sooner this debt can be retired the more the taxpayers will save in interest and the easier it will be to secure funds with which to prosecute needed running expenses, constructions, and improvements. This item of $820,000,000 for interest is a heavy charge on all the people of the country, and it seems to me that we might well consider whether it is not greatly worth while to dispense with it as early as possible by retiring the principal debt which it is required to serve.

Proposals have been made to extend the payment over a period of 62 years. If $1,000,000,000 is paid at the end of 20 years, the cost to the taxpayers is the principal and, if the interest is 4¼ per cent., a total of $1,850,000,000. If the same sum is paid at the end of 62 years, the cost is $3,635,000,000, or almost double. Here is another consideration: Compared with its purchasing power in 1913, the dollar we borrowed represented but 52 cents. As the value of our dollar increases, due to the falling price of commodities, the burden of our debt increases. It has now risen to 63½ cents. The taxpayer will be required to produce nearly twice the amount of commodities to pay his debt if the dollar returns to the 1913 value. The more we pay while prices are high the easier it will be.

Budget

The Congress has absolute authority over the appropriations and is free to exercise its judgment, as the evidence may warrant, in increasing or decreasing budget recommendations. But it ought to resist every effort to weaken or break down this most beneficial system of supervising appropriations and expenditures. Without it all the claim of economy would be a mere pretense.

Taxation

The purpose of reducing expenditures is to secure a reduction in taxes. That purpose is about to be realized. As the bill has proceeded through the committee it has taken on a non-partisan character, and both Republicans and Democrats have joined in a measure which embodies many sound principles of tax reform. The bill will correct substantially the economic defects injected into the revenue act of 1924, as well as many which have remained as war-time legacies. In its present form it should provide sufficient revenue for the government.

Insofar as income tax exemptions are concerned, it seems to me the committee has gone as far as it is safe to go and somewhat further than I should have gone. Any further extension along these lines would, in my opinion, impair the integrity of our income tax system.

Foreign Relations

The policy of our foreign relations, casting aside any suggestion of force, rests solely on the foundation of peace, good will, and good works. We have sought, in our intercourse with other nations, better understandings through conference and exchange of views as befits beings endowed with reason. The results have been the gradual elimination of disputes, the settlement of controversies, and the establishment of a firmer friendship between America and the rest of the world than has ever existed at any previous time.

The example of this attitude has not been without its influence upon other countries. Acting upon it, an adjustment was made of the difficult problem of reparations. This was the second step toward peace in Europe. It paved the way for the agreements which were drawn up at the Locarno Conference. When ratified, these will represent the third step toward peace. While they do not of themselves provide an economic rehabilitation, which is necessary for the progress of Europe, by strengthening the guaranties of peace they diminish the need for great armaments. If the energy which now goes into military effort is transferred to productive endeavor, it will greatly assist economic progress.

The general policy of our country is for disarmament, and it ought not to hesitate to adopt any practical plan that might reasonably be expected to succeed. But it would not care to attend a conference which from its location or constituency would in all probability prove futile.

Court of Justice

Pending before the Senate for nearly three years is the proposal to adhere to the protocol establishing the Permanent Court of International Justice.

We are not proposing to subject ourselves to any compulsory jurisdiction. If we support the court, we can never be obliged to submit any case which involves our interests for its decision. Our appearance before it would always be voluntary, for the purpose of presenting a case which we had agreed might be presented. There is no more danger that others might bring cases before the court involving our interests which we did not wish to have brought, after we have adhered, and probably not so much, than there would be of bringing such cases if we do not adhere. I think that we would have the same legal or moral right to disregard such a finding in the one case that we would in the other.

If we are going to support any court, it will not be one that we have set up alone or which reflects only our ideals.

Every reasonable effort will be made to secure agreements for liquidation with the remaining countries, whenever they are in such condition that they can be made. Wherever sacrifices have been made of money, it will be more than amply returned in better understanding and friendship, while in so far as these adjustments will contribute to the financial stability of the debtor countries, to their good order, prosperity, and progress, they represent hope of improved trade relations and mutual contributions to the civilization of the world.

Immigration

While our country numbers among its best citizens many of those of foreign birth, yet those who now enter in violation of our laws by that very act thereby place themselves in a class of undesirables. If investigation reveals that any considerable number are coming here in defiance of our immigration restrictions, it will undoubtedly create the necessity for the registration of all aliens. We ought to have no prejudice against an alien because he is an alien. The standard which we apply to our inhabitants is that of manhood, not place of birth. Restrictive immigration is to a large degree for economic purposes. It is applied in order that we may not have a larger annual increment of good people within our borders than we can weave into our economic fabric in such a way as to supply their needs without undue injury to ourselves.

National Defense

A sound selective service act giving broad authority for the mobilization in time of peril of all the resources of the country, both persons and materials, is needed to perfect our defensive policy in accordance with our ideals of equality. The provision for more suitable housing to be paid for out of funds derived from the sale of excess lands, pending before the last Congress, ought to be brought forward and passed. Reasonable replacements ought to be made to maintain a sufficient ammunition reserve.

Last year at my suggestion the General Board of the Navy made an investigation and report on the relation of aircraft to warships. As a result authorizations and appropriations were made for more scout cruisers and fleet submarines and for completing aircraft carriers and equipping them with necessary planes. Additional training in aviation was begun at the Military and Naval Academies. A method of co-ordination and co-operation of the Army and Navy and the principal aircraft builders is being perfected. At the suggestion of the Secretaries of War and Navy I appointed a special board to make a further study of the problem of aircraft.

The report of the Air Board ought to be reassuring to the country, gratifying to the service and satisfactory to the Congress. It is thoroughly complete and represents the mature thought of the best talent in the country. No radical change in organization of the service seems necessary. The Departments of War, Navy, and Commerce should each be provided with an additional assistant secretary, not necessarily with statutory duties, but who would be available under the direction of the Secretary to give especial attention to air navigation. We must have an air strength worthy of America. Provision should be made for two additional brigadier-generals for the Army Air Service. Temporary rank corresponding to their duties should be awarded to active flying officers in both Army and Navy.

While I am a thorough believer in national defense and entirely committed to the policy of adequate preparation, I am just as thoroughly opposed to instigating or participating in a policy of competitive armaments. Nor does preparation mean a policy of militarizing.

Veterans

With the enormous outlay that is now being made in behalf of the veterans and their dependents, with a tremendous war debt still requiring great annual expenditure, with the still high rate of taxation, while every provision should be made for the relief of the disabled and the necessary care of dependents, the Congress may well consider whether the financial condition of the government is not such that further bounty through the enlargement of general pensions and other emoluments ought not to be postponed.

Muscle Shoals

The problem of Muscle Shoals seems to have assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance. It probably does not represent in market value much more than a first-class battleship, yet it has been discussed in the Congress over a period of years and for months at a time. It ought to be developed for production of nitrates primarily, and incidentally for power purposes. This would serve for defensive, agricultural and industrial purposes. I am in favor of disposing of this property to meet these purposes. The findings of the special commission will be transmitted to the Congress for their information.

I am convinced that the best possible disposition can be made by direct authorization of the Congress. As a means of negotiation I recommend the immediate appointment of a small joint special committee chosen from the appropriate general standing committees of the House and Senate to receive bids, which when made should be reported with recommendations as to acceptance, upon which a law should be enacted, effecting a sale to the highest bidder who will agree to carry out these purposes.

If anything were needed to demonstrate the almost utter incapacity of the National government to deal directly with an industrial and commercial problem, it has been provided by our experience with this property. We have expended vast fortunes, we have taxed everybody but we are unable to secure results which benefit anybody. This property ought to be transferred to private management under conditions which will dedicate it to the public purpose for which it was conceived.

Shipping

All the investigations that have been made under my direction, and those which have been prosecuted independently, have reached the conclusion that the fleet should be under the direct control of a single executive head, while the Shipping Board should exercise its judicial and regulatory functions in accordance with its original conception.

The report of Henry G. Dalton, a business man of broad experience, with a knowledge of shipping, made to me after careful investigation, will be transmitted for the information of Congress, the studies pursued under the direction of the United States Chamber of Commerce will also be accessible, and added to these will be the report of the special committee of the House.

Coal

The perennial conflict in the coal industry is still going on to the great detriment of the wage earners, the owners, and especially to the public. With deposits of coal in this country capable of supplying its needs for hundreds of years, inability to manage and control this great resource for the benefit of all concerned is very close to a national economic failure.

It has been the subject of repeated investigation and reiterated recommendation. Yet the industry seems never to have accepted modern methods of adjusting differences between employers and employes. The industry could serve the public much better and become subject to a much more effective method of control if regional consolidations and more freedom in the formation of marketing associations, under the supervision of the Department of Commerce, were permitted.

At the present time the national government has little or no authority to deal with this vital necessity of the life of the country. It has permitted itself to remain so powerless that its only attitude must be humble supplication.

Authority should be lodged with the President and the Departments of Commerce and Labor, giving them power to deal with an emergency. They should be able to appoint temporary boards with authority to call for witnesses and documents; conciliate differences, encourage arbitration, and in case of threatened scarcity exercise control over distribution. Making the facts public under these circumstances through a statement from an authoritative source would be of great public benefit. The report of the last coal commission should be brought forward, reconsidered, and acted upon.

Prohibition

Under the orderly processes of our fundamental institutions the Constitution was lately amended providing for national prohibition. The Congress passed an act for its enforcement, and similar acts have been provided by most of the States. It is the law of the land. It is the duty of all who come under its jurisdiction to observe the spirit of that law, and it is the duty of the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department to enforce it. Action to prevent smuggling, illegal transportation in interstate commerce, abuse in the use of permits, and existence of sources of supply for illegal traffic is almost entirely imposed upon the Federal Government.

Through treaties with foreign governments and increased activities of the Coast Guard, revenue agents, district attorneys, and enforcement agents effort is being made to prevent these violations. But the Constitution also puts a concurrent duty on the States. We need their active and energetic co-operation, the vigilant action of their police, and the jurisdiction of their courts to assist in enforcement. I request of the people observance, of the public officers continuing efforts for enforcement, and of the Congress favorable action on the budget recommendation for the prosecution of this work.

Waterways

For many years our country has been employed in plans and operations for the development of our intracoastal and inland waterways. This work along our coast is an important adjunct to our commerce. It will be carried on, together with the further opening up of our harbors, as our resources permit. The government made an agreement during the war to take over the Cape Cod Canal, under which the owners made valuable concessions. This pledged faith of the government ought to be redeemed.

Civil Service

In 1883 the Congress passed the civil service act, which from a modest beginning of 14,000 employees has grown until there are now 425,000 in the classified service. This has removed the clerical force of the Nation from the wasteful effects of the spoils system and made it more stable and efficient. The time has come to consider classifying all postmasters, collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenue and prohibition agents, by an act covering in those at present in office, except when otherwise provided by executive order.

The necessary statistics are now being gathered to form the basis of a valuation of the civil service retirement fund based on current conditions of the service.

MANY NOTABLES AT MASS BY CARDINAL

Prelate Pontfiicates on His Natal Day in Impressive Cathedral Ceremony

Cardinal Sends His Greetings to Boston

REALLY, I don't know how to thank the good people of Boston for their constant attitude of kindness toward me. The things that I prize most in life are the love, affection and esteem of these good people. They may be assured that they will be remembered in my prayers today and forever.—Message of William Cardinal O'Connell, sixty-six years old today, to the people of Boston through the Boston Evening American.

By JAMES WALSH.

Cardinal O'Connell, head of the great see of Boston and dean of the American hierarchy, pontificated today at solemn mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, in observance of one of the most glorious feasts in the calendar of the Roman Catholic Church—the Immaculate Conception—and of his sixty-sixth birthday.

Surrounded by the priests of the Cathedral, the Cardinal was the central figure in a ceremony that was as impressive as it was sublime. Prominent Catholic business men, merchants, and men high in their respective professions were included in the great throng that crowded the edifice to its capacity.

In every church in the archdiocese the feast day was observed, special prayers being offered for His Eminence, for a continuance of his splendid health to carry on his huge task.

BRILLIANT PROCESSION.

Promptly at the hour of the beginning of the mass, crossbearer, acolytes, torchbearers, thurifer and boat carrier, followed by altar boys and the priests of the Cathedral, the Cardinal bringing up the rear of the procession, emerged from the sacristy and proceeded to the sanctuary.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, the Cardinal's secretary and chancellor of the archdiocese, was the assistant priest, the Rev. Neil A. Cronin, administrator of the Cathedral, and the Rev. William A. Dacey, were deacon and subdeacon respectively. The Rev. Richard Quinlan and the Rev. Robert P. Barry, the latter assistant director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, were deacons of honor to the Cardinal. The Rev. Harry M. O'Connor and the Rev. John J. Wall were masters of ceremonies.

The music of the mass was sung by the Cathedral and sanctuary choirs.

GREAT CONGREGATION.

The great congregation, which included Sisters of St. Joseph, who teach in the Cathedral parochial school, delegations from the Grey Nuns and from other religious orders in the archdiocese, was seated by Chief Usher Jerome O'Neil, assisted by James J. Deery, Joseph Arsenault, Joseph McDonald, John Landrigan, John Kenny and Josepn Baxter.

The Cardinal began the day by celebrating mass in his private chapel at his residence in Rawson road, Brookline, coming to the Cathedral afterward to pontificate at the solemn mass.

The Cardinal received a cable last night from Pope Pius XI, felicitating him on his birthday and conveying best wishes. Several hundred people, including many children, greeted the Cardinal in the Cathedral yard and wished him a happy birthday. "Thank you, my dear children, and good people," said he, "for your good wishes. May God bless you all."

The Cardinal, accompanied by Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, his secretary and chancellor of the archdiocese, then left for his offices in Granby street, to take up the business of the day.

The annual birthday reception for the Cardinal will be given this afternoon at 4 o'clock by the executive board of the League of Catholic Women at its headquarters, No. 1 Arlington street.

CARMEN ELECT CLARK AGAIN

Charles H. Clark was elected president of the Boston Carmen's Union for the fourth successive year at the annual election, the results of which were announced by Warden T. J. Walsh today at union headquarters, No. 18 Tremont street.

Clark received 2,842 votes, while James H. Flanagan, his opponent, received 2,072. A feature of the election was the defeat of John J. Lyons by John H. McAnulty in the contest for assistant secretary, after Lyons had held the office for seven years. The count was: McAnulty, 3,641; Lyons, 3,331.

HOW CARDINAL LOOKS ON 66TH BIRTHDAY

TWO NEW ASSISTANTS TO O'BRIEN APPOINTED

Timothy F. Callahan, of No. 4 Wallingford road, Brighton, and Joseph J. Leonard of No. 687 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, were today appointed assistant district attorneys by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien. Callahan will receive a salary of $6,000 a year, while Leonard will receive $5,000. Leonard was formerly an assistant, but resigned to take charge of O'Brien's campaign for mayor. They succeed Maurice Caro and Frank S. Deland, who resigned.

ROXBURY MAN HELD FOR THEFT OF FUR COATS

John O'Brien of Cottage street, Roxbury, was held for the grand jury today by Judge Bolster in Municipal Court after his arrest by Officer Jackson of the traffic division on a charge of larceny of a fur coat valued at $500 and a cloth coat valued at $77 from downtown department stores. According to the police, O'Brien has a long record, and for that reason Judge Bolster decided prosecution should come in the higher court.

4 PLEAD GUILTY IN CHELSEA RUM CASE

One Witness Tells of Being Offered Shares in "Quigley-Noone Company"

Four of the nine defendants, who the government alleges comprise the Manufacturers' Liquor Union, the second link in the Chelsea rum ring, pleaded guilty today before United States Judge James M. Morton in the Federal Court here to charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. The other five were immediately placed on trial before a jury.

Those who pleaded guilty are: Sam Goldsmith of Chelsea, Sam Bigler of Everett and Wolfe Pallace of Winthrop.

George Weinstein, Ernest "Dutch" Henry, Arthur Woodrow, Sam Zetzel, Louis Seigel and Meyer Brown, all of Chelsea, were placed on trial.

The trial had been under way only a short time when Brown changed his not guilty plea to one of guilty.

In outlining the government's case, Assistant U. S. Attorney Elihu D. Stone claimed that the defendants had agreed to the organization of a liquor union through which they were to manufacture and sell liquor to chosen individuals at stated prices.

The government further alleges that all transactions were handled through the Suffolk Supply Company, Fifth and Chestnut streets, Chelsea, of which George Weinstein is president and treasurer.

Jake Karp, a former liquor dealer, was the first witness for the government. He said he had been approached by Weinstein and Henry and asked to join the organization. "I was told that I would have to buy $1,500 worth of shares and give a bond of $1,200 that I would abide by the laws of the organization."

"What were the shares you were asked to buy?" Stone queried.

"Shares in the Quigley-Noone Company."

This is said to be a clothing concern owned by Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, awaiting trial in connection with the Chelsea liquor ring, and former Mayor Noone of Revere.

ARREST NEAR IN ALICE CORBETT MYSTERY

Squad of Detectives Fill Auto With Blankets and Go to Holyoke

Northampton, Dec. 8.—The search for Alice M. Corbett, pretty nineteen-year-old Smith College junior, missing almost a month, broke wide open today.

While one party of detectives who have been conducting a search under direction of State Detective Joseph Daly, raced off in automobiles to search a cottage at Lake Goshen, another party piled automobiles high with blankets and hastened to Holyoke.

There was a possibility of an arrest seen in one of the hurried departures, or even in both, and the feeling was that the long hunt for the strangely missing girl was near its end.

While both hurried departures were made with much mystery attending, it is known that the objective of the Lake Goshen party was one cottage, owned and often occupied by a professional man.

It was evident that the news received by Detective Daly today, leading him to plan the trips hastily, was of exciting nature, but he refused to reveal the source of his information or its exact nature.

CITY HALL CLERK STRICKEN NEAR DEATH IN HOSPITAL

James F. Welch of No. 50 Woodbine street, Roxbury, a clerk in the assessors' department collapsed in the corridor of City Hall annex today as he was about to go on an elevator.

At the Relief Hospital it was found he was suffering from a severe internal hemorrhage. His name was placed on the danger list.

Mr. Welch has been in the employ of the city since 1880 and has rarely missed a day at his office.

LOUIE THE XIV. WINS CROWN OF TRIUMPH

New Ziegfeld Production at Tremont Dazzled a First Night Audience

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

ABOUT the least that may be said of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Louie the 14th" is that the amiable gentleman who glorified the American girl, also carries other high explosives in his ammunition train. A surging crowd of first nighters packed everything but the aisles at the Tremont in an effort to get face to face with one of the biggest productions every turned out of the Ziegfeld workshop.

Incidentally, and carefully avoiding any reference to theatrical dimension, "Louie the 14th" filled Tremont Theatre with the smartest and most fetching entertainment with musical trimmings the town has had for some time—or will have for some time to come.

All the old bromides about Ziegfeld and his works became a throbbing, irresistible reality. Of course—and who would doubt it?—the American girl was glorified, but even in her most effulgent moments in "Louie the 14th" she faced gruelling rivalry that demanded its own toll. There were piles of scenery, broad, deep and altitudinous; there was a musical score that swept the theatre with its rhythm and its harmony and kept the swaying, perspiring director in a muscular tremor for three hard hours; there was costuming extending beyond the limits of adequate description. And there was Leon Errol, an animated exponent of fun, who had a plain duty to perform and held close to the job from 8:15 until some threatening moments after eleven.

Without hesitation—without a faltering step—Mr. Errol and his companions brought new glory to the Ziegfeld banner and made the show a revel in dazzling color, harmonious tone and gleeful ecstacy. It was beauty and harmony, flanked by a brand of comedy that rattled on the theatre walls.

Little that is new may be said of Errol. He was just Errol—amusingly imbibed and well able to navigate safely. For other brilliancy you had Ethel Shutta, a dynamic comedienne of blonde propensities and gorgeous talents. Voices that rang true were supplied by Glen Dale and Doris Patston, an English girl, who should become an American fixture. Dancing was presented in detail by Evelyn Law and Florentine Gosnova, topped off by a comedy outburst in toe dancing by Edna Covey.

These may be mentioned merely as items in a magnificent ensemble of people, songs and dialogue. Not a dull or waiting moment interrupted the proceedings. And that was "Louie the 14th."

Once more has Mr. Ziegfeld set up a new standard in entertainment—again has the unerring touch that glorified the American girl done a new job in glorifying the entire American theatre.

'THE WILD DUCK' WELL PLAYED

Henrik Ibsen, the Old Man of the North, rose up again like a sort of combination Titan and phoenix last evening at the Repertory Theatre, where his bitter assault upon life, "The Wild Duck" was splendidly played. Nearly forty foolish years have stumbled by since that grim and biting whack at humanity first saw the stage. Yet it proves as muscular and athletic as in the heyday of its powerful, dismal youth.

Blanche Yurka calmly and masterfully portrayed the simple peasant wife about whom the storm, gradually getting its dander up, rages furiously. Finely keeping within the brainless but valuable personality of this former serving-wench, she commands the stage save when she gracefully permits Peg Entwistle, as her ill-starred daughter, to reign there. Miss Entwistle has flung herself devotedly and accurately into her part, and wears it like a Paquin-fitted gown.

The first night went marvellously smooth, apparently because most of the cast hurled themselves so fervidly into their parts that there was no stopping them from whirling impressively through the play.

Continuing Shows

COLONIAL—"Lady Be Good." Rollicking musical comedy, with Walter Catlett serving the laughs.

WILBUR—George Arliss in "Old English." Possible the most artistic achievement in Mr. Arliss' career.

PLYMOUTH—"Candida." Bernard Shaw's best comedy. The last week.

MAJESTIC—Greenwich Village Follies. Musical revue, crowded with novelties.

FAITHFUL TOILERS IN GARDEN OF FUN

Leon Errol and Ethel Shutta—A sprightly, irrepressible pair who lead the long parade of gaiety and frolic in Mr. Ziegfeld's "Louie the 14th" at the Tremont.

MARION DAVIES ORPHEUM HIT

"Lights of Old Broadway," with Marion Davies as the charming heroine, was shown to a delighted audience at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. As is usual with Miss Davies' pictures, she gives us a lesson in the history of America.

This time she has chosen the colorful and romantic seventies when New York was changing from a straggling overgrown town to a modern metropolis.

The story is centered about the installation of the city's electrical street lighting system and it does it in a way that thrills, charms and educates.

In the picture we have a new Marion Davies, with all of her loveliness, playing the part of an Irish Colleen with a dancing act at Tony Pastor's old theatre.

She shows her Irish wit and her Irish nerve and she is a credit to both American and Irish blood.

Conrad Nagel is excellent as the old-fashioned suitor as is the remainder of the supporting cast.

The vaudeville program also was highly entertaining.

KELLERMAN BIG KEITH FEATURE

Annette Kellerman, foremost exponent of physical education and famous wonder woman of the water is the feature act of an excellent bill at Keith's this week. Her diving exhibition in the crystal bowl is a delight.

She also gives a physical culture demonstrated for the benefit of women and if her instructions are followed, women with excess weight should be scare.

With Miss Kellerman's company are two clever acrobatic dancers, Castleton and Mack, and they, too, receive much applause.

Claude and Marion in a skit called "Still Arguing" are very funny and keep the audience in roars.

The ventriloquist act of Coram and his Jerry is one of the leading features of the bill.

Mary Hayes, assisted by Ebin S. Litchfield at the piano, keeps the audience in good humor by her comedy songs.

The rest of the bill is good.

VALENTINO IN SMART PLAY

Rudolph Valentino in "The Eagle," is the attraction at Loew's State Theatre. The first and most important thing to say about "The Eagle" is that it is smart entertainment.

It is a fast moving compound of comedy, thrills and romance. The screen's greatest lover makes his first appearance as a Cossack lieutenant and later turns bandit. His daring and swift, mysterious movements earn him the title of Eagle.

Valentino has a role distinctly different from any of his others and he imparts to it genuine vitality and magnetism. The role calls for unusual versatility inasmuch as he appears in three guises: a Cossack lieutenant, an adventurous bandit and a French tutor. The star is supported by a brilliant cast, including Vilma Banky as the leading woman, Louise Dresser as the Czarina and many other bright lights of filmdom.

HUB HAILS NEW PHONOFILM AS A MARVEL

DeForest's Invention Not Only Shows Speaker, but Reproduces Voice

A big audience at Tremont Temple witnessed the introduction in Boston of the phonofilm. This wonderful invention, the work of Dr. Lee DeForest, radio inventor, consists of perfectly synchronized motion pictures and sound.

Dr. DeForest made a brief introductory address in which he described the functioning of the device. He was given an ovation as the inventor of the "three element vacuum tube," making present-day radio possible.

During this presentation of the phonofilm such artists as Eddie Cantor, Borrah Minnevitch, Weber and Fields, and Ben Bernie were seen and heard. Then followed a motion picture of President Coolidge reading his "economy" speech. As soon as the President's voice was heard, there were murmurs of approval through the audience—an audience which had no doubt already become familiar with the President's voice over the radio.

At the beginning, a comparison was made, depicting the difference between certain scenes with and without the phonofilm attachment. One scene showed a group of banjo players strumming somewhat stupidly away. The effect was like observing the motions of dancing couples so far away one couldn't hear the music. Then the same scene was thrown on the screen only this time the phonofilm was put in operation. The difference was almost uncanny in its reality.

The synchronism of voice and action on the screen was perfect. This in itself is perhaps the most remarkable part of the invention.

Continuing Shows

SHUBERT—"The Student Prince." Romantic operetta based on "Old Heidelberg."

CASTLE SQ.—"Abie's Irish Rose." The world's most popular play, now on its way to a new local record.

NEW PARK—Blackstone, the magician. Showing that the hand is quicker than the eye. The last week.

HOLLIS—"The Kick Off." College comedy with a great deal about football.

'WE MODERNS' A FILM PLAY IN JAZZ TEMPO

Metropolitan Feature Has a Moral for the Flaming Youth of Today

The gilded pleasures of unrestrained youth are held up as a more or less fair warning to all in "We Moderns" at the Metropolitan. There is no reference to flappers, as such, but nine-tenths of the piece is done in jazz tempo with the strutting younger generation adding shock after shock to their long suffering elders.

It is well for all concerned that Colleen Moore heads the flapper brigade because she is just "cute" enough never to appear really naughty and you laugh at her saucy stubbornness, even though the good old-fashioned spanking administered by her outraged papa, is so richly deserved.

The conventionality of the story, and one inappropriate spot of melodrama can be forgiven in the face of the irresistible Colleen personality. She is the glowing embodiment of youth, the perfect flapper.

The wreck of a huge zeppelin in mid air is at least a new idea for a movie climax and somewhat of a relief from the usual fire and flood finishes, but even more wonderful than the miraculous preservation of Jonah in the whale is the escape of Miss Moore, safe and sound, from the completely demolished airship.

Jack Mulhall, Claude Gillingwater and Cleve Moore, Colleen's brother, are the other featured players.

John Murray Anderson continues to provide novel and interesting stage presentations. The current "Gypsy Follies" is a colorful mixture of ensemble singing and dancing that is nothing if not unique.

SEA PLAY THAT IS DIFFERENT

Thrills of the vasty deep with some mixed love affairs on shore form the theme of "The Storm Breaker," feature film at the new Boston this week. The fine performance of House Peters and Ruth Clifford together with some excellently realistic photography of a storm at sea make it an extremely interesting picture.

Sea stories in the movies run very much on the same pattern, the on the rockbound seashore and wed in the quaint old cottage by the sea. Enter the disturbing influence to complicate the home situation while the young hubby is far out to sea busily engaged in mackerel fishing. The storm breaks in all its fury, there are lives to save and sacrifices to be made; the daring rescue is so well done that all is forgiven and everything straightens out nicely.

"The Storm Breaker" follows the same trend, but the splendid work of the coast and the general pictorial beauty make a pleasant distraction from the familiar story. Vaudeville and other screen features complete the bill.

APPEARANCES MEAN NOTHING IN FILMS

CARL MILLER AND COLLEEN MOORE—Colleen registers well defined horror as Carl gives manifestation of great affection in "We Moderns" at the Metropolitan.

GALE OF FUN IN OLD 'CAPTAIN APPLEJACK'

Clive and Fellow Players at Copley Make Vivid the Perfect Farce

Completely submitting to the farcical element in their presentation of Walter Hackett's fantastic comedy, "Captain Applejack," E. E. Clive and his Copley players registered heavily on the risibilities of the first night audience.

Reading the lines in the broad manner of farce, Mr. Clive found instant favor with his friendly Copley patrons who were very obviously on laughter bent and who gave generous encouragement to every underscored line.

It was, perhaps, fortunate that Clive in the title role, declined to play the character "straight." His unmistakable sense of the ridiculous stood him in good stead and, judging by the applause, the result was never in doubt.

After a long run of servant roles, comic or otherwise, it seemed pleasant to re-discover May Ediss in drawing room attire and speaking her lines without a breath of dialect. Miss Standing made a charming Anna Valeska and had a new task, in lisping a strong French accent.

Under the uproarious rendition, the pirate scene became almost burlesque, but that only added to the merriment. There is much to be said for the Clive version, however, for it is sure-fire comedy and solid entertainment all the way through.

Coming Events

"Applesauce" is announced as the attraction at the Plymouth starting Monday, December 21.

E. H. Sothern in "Accused" will take the stage at the Wilbur on Monday, December 21.

"Sweetheart Time," a new musical comedy, will move into the Majestic on Christmas night.

Sid Chaplin in "The Man on the Box" will be the film feature at the Metropolitan next week.

$2,574,864 PAID MEMBERS OF XMAS CLUBS

Four of the Largest Banks Report Big Gain in Savings During the Year

Four of the largest Christmas Savings Clubs in Boston banks today reported that members would receive checks otaling $2,574,864 as a result of their savings for one year.

At the request of the Boston Retail Board of Trade the day for the distribution of the holiday savings was set one week ahead of last years schedule.

The Christmas Club idea has caught like wildfire, according to the Exchange Trust Company, which evolved the idea. This company reports a total of $1,671,890 in readiness for the club members.

The Federal National Bank announced that $723,424 would be handed over to members of its Christmas Club—a gain over last year's figures, which totalled $649,714.

The Home Savings Bank's total was announced as $626,550, the largest in its history and the Citizen's National Bank with $553,000 ready for distribution, showed an increase of more than $75,000 over 1924.

Bank officials declared that less than 12 per cent. of Christmas Club savings is turned into regular savings accounts but that the plan has encouraged thrift and has become almost a necessity in the promotion of Christmas business.

ARTIST GOOLD IN FATAL FALL

Paul P. Goold, former Boston artist, was killed when he fell from a window in his studio on the twelfth floor of Carnegie Hall, New York.

Investigation has not determined exactly how the fall occurred, but a letter was found on a table, addressed to his wife. The police refused to divulge the contents.

Goold, whose artistic and humorous work is widely known, was born in Portland, Me., and was a member of many artists' clubs. He was fifty years old, and is survived by his widow, who was Edith Chapman, a New York singer, his mother and a brother.

For years he was a newspaper artist in Boston.

TEMPLE SPURNS $1,500,000 BID

An offer of $1,500,000 for the purchase of Tremont Temple has been spurned by the trustees, it was learned today.

"Our people would not sanction the sale of this famous structure" said Superintendent Plympton after admitting that a syndicate had submitted the big bid for the property.

"Of course we might sell and erect another million-dollar church elsewhere and still have half a million left for endowment, but those who love this old church would never feel as much at home away from here. We will not sell."

SYRIAN PRELATE'S BODY TO BE SENT TO BEIRUT

The bodies of the late Chor-Bishop Joseph Yazbek, vicar-general of the Syrian Maronite Church in the United States, and his nephew, the late Rev. Joseph K. Yazbek, both of whom died in Boston this Fall, will be sent to Syria on the S. S. Canada of the French line, leaving Providence on December 12. Impressive final services will be held in Beirut. Preparatory to the transfer of the bodies a solemn high mass of requiem will be sung in the Church of Our Lady of the Cedars in Tyler street Friday morning, and in the evening the special Maronite Liturgy for the Dead will be read in the same church.

O'LEARY CONSECRATES NEW PASSIONIST MONASTERY

Springfield, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Bishop Thomas M. O'Leary of the Roman Catholic diocese of Springfield, who recently returned from Rome, today officiated at the consecration of the main altar at the new Passionist Monastery in West Springfield. The exercises were attended by a large gathering of Passionist Fathers as well as priests of this diocese.

BENEFIT DANCE WILL BE HELD FOR W. E. BOWDEN

A benefit dance for William E. Bowden will be held at the Army-Navy club on December 11. Bowden is an ex-soldier who has been in the United States army for the past eighteen years. Judging by the large demand of tickets, a huge crowd will attend the social, and Bowden will be an honored guest.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

First Junior Supper Dance of Winter Season Held at Copley-Plaza

THE YEAR-OR-MORE-OUT set comes into its own particular province tomorrow evening at the First Junior Supper Dance of the Winter's series at the Copley-Plaza. Girls who have danced and frivoled through at least one season follow the example of the "seniors" and entertain at dinner before the dance and bring on their groups as supper guests.

MISS ISABEL THORNDIKE, daughter of the Harry Hill Thorndikes, has reservations for ten. Another vivacious hostess presiding for a round-table group will be Miss Nancy Wentworth. She has twelve guests.

STILL ANOTHER consistent supper dance hostess is Miss Sally Bowditch, attractive daughter of Mrs. Ernest W. Bowditch of "Eastover" in Milton. Miss Bowditch is asking sixteen guests, one of the largest supper groups of the entire affair. Mrs. John Bryant Paine has requisitioned a table for ten.

THE PAINES' SECOND daughter, Miss Carol Paine, is to fill the hostess role, one that fits her to perfection. And about these festive boards the bud of the season does not appear. Time was—and not so very long ago—when the "just outs" were eligible to the supper dance lists.

BUT THE CROWDED bud calendar and increasingly large numbers of blithe young things making a social appearance each Winter led to a supper dance innovation. Mesdames Richard S. Russell, Hugh D. Scott, N. Penrose Hallowell and other leaders just blue pencilled the buds and turned the dances over to the other girls.

MRS. GEORGE RICHMOND FEARING, JR., is lending some choice early American pieces to the loan collection which opened so brilliantly with a private view.

THIS SEASON, WITH Mrs. Scott putting in a season abroad, Mrs. Hallowell resumes prominent place in Junior Supper Dance arrangements; also Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster, Mrs. William S. Patten, Mrs. Frederick Strong Moseley and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, each identified with these affairs in past Winters.

SOCIETY FLOCKED TO THE LOAN exhibition of early American furniture and furnishings and departed enthusiastically extolling the show and its instigators, a representative set headed by Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson, J. Lovell Little and Henry D. Sleeper, among others.

IT'S A PICTURESQUE ARRANGEMENT, a series of quaint rooms completely furnished with Boston-owned treasures, priceless and unmatched, and some of which are leaving their own roof trees for the very first time in scores of years. Even old fire places have been set up, and some rooms boast entire walls of old-time boarding.

AMERICA'S FIRST FIVE Presidents done in oils, come from the T. Jefferson Coolidge collection (Mr. Coolidge is a descendant of the famous Jefferson). They occupy, naturally, an honored place at the head of the hall. Nearby is an extraordinarily fine Sandwich glass exhibition.

IT BELONGS TO MRS. PARKER W. WHITTEMORE, and will make a collector of Sandwich glass fairly green with envy. A complete table service is on view, even to the much sought lamps supported by dolphins. Altogether a wonderful showing of Cape Cod's master craftsmen.

MRS. WILLIAM WHITMAN loans pottery, J. Lovell Little, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Hollis French, Harold Pitman, Mrs. B. F. W. Russell, and many another collector and connoisseur contributes. The very wash stand used by the venerated Paul Revere is there, loaned by E. H. R. Revere.

NATURALLY THE J. LOVELL LITTLES, who've done so much to make the exhibition a success, were heartily congratulated. Mrs. Little was in black with coral pink-fringed shawl; Mrs. James A. Parker wore black velvet with silver, and Miss Virginia Parker was in bottle green velvet.

VERY SMART WAS MRS. F. L. W. RICHARDSON, her black crepe frock scarfed in brilliant colors. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Orcutt in beautifully embroidered white crepe with a gay green shawl, were in the admiring throng.

FOR THE DEBUTANTES THE PRESENT week's opening frivolity was the dance at the Hotel Somerset given by James Howe Proctor and Miss Polly Proctor for the debutante in the family, Miss Esther Proctor. Aside from its bud aspect, the function partook generously of the smart North Shore set, in which the Proctors move prominently.

PRECEDING THE DANCE, there was a dinner for fifty guests at the Proctor town house in Commonwealth avenue, a brilliant entertainment and fitting prelude to the larger later affair, for which the French ballroom of the Hotel Somerset was profusely decorated.

IN THE RECEIVING LINE Mrs. George Snell Mandell (Emily Proctor) was flanked on one side by Miss Esther, the debutante, in a handsome frock of white velvet and tulle, and by Miss Polly Proctor, who chose a brilliant vermilion creation shot with gold to grace her sister's presentation party.

PET DOG SAVES SIX; THEN DIES AMID FLAMES

Mickey Trapped in Burning Revere Home After Barking an Alarm as Fire Starts

Mickey, a scrawny shepherd dog, is dead, but in the dying the canine hero saved six lives.

Mrs. Annie Festa was aroused from sleep in her home at No. 35 Lantern road, Revere, early today by the frantic scratching of Mickey at the door. She opened it and found an inner room ablaze.

The mother first carried her baby to safety, then returned and led or carried her four other children, ranging in age from a few months to 15 years, to safety.

But Mickey had missed count. The devoted animal thought there was still a child left in the blazing house and ran in again to complete his work of hero. Mrs. Festa was just on the point of once more fighting the fire to rescue the rescuer when the roof toppled in on what was left of Mickey.

Several times Mrs. Festa was driven back by the flames as she was trying to save her children.

At last, after tying wet towels and handkerchiefs about the mouths of her children and stuffing a wet rag in her own mouth, she managed to carry the little ones out.

Firemen were forced to lay about 200 feet of hose before they could get a stream on the fire. By this time the four walls had collapsed and the house was in ruins.

It is believed the fire was started by a coal from the furnace and that it had been smouldering for some time before the woman smelled smoke.

None of the children was hurt during their rescue although physicians who were called treated them for exposure.

The loss is estimated at $7,000, partly covered by insurance.

NEWBURYPORT TRIP EXCITES OLD SANTA

Invites Hub Kids to Meet Him on the Common Today and Tomorrow

Sunshine, youngsters and Santa. All holding forth these days again on the Common.

Prancer and Dancer, Dunder and Blitzen are at the Common with Santa as their two brothers disport among the shoppers.

Santa goes to Newburyport on Thursday so all you kids get in to see him today or tomorrow. But he'll be back. He likes Boston and Boston kids.

Robert Marokwok, the trusty Eskimo caretaker, Santa and the whole party who are guests of the Boston Evening American on this visit, all agree that they like snow and don't like rain. A standing order has been placed by the genial, smiling patron for a good big snow storm.

Santa has most of his mail sorted and some of his orders are ready to be filled. He has some stack but has never failed yet.

He is all excited about his trip to Newburyport on Thursday because folks from Beverly and Peabody are also going to greet him when he gets there. He says that he will not try to sneak in to any other city as he tried to in Boston and Salem. The tots are too wise and he doesn't like to get caught. This might be a steer, though, for he is as sly as can be.

Today and tomorrow he can be seen on the Common and then the kids will have to excuse him for a day.

The Girl in the Green Hat:
"My dear, how do you dare give that well dressed husband of yours anything to wear?"

The Lady in Ermine:
"The secret, Betty, is not so much what to buy—but where to buy it."

What the Lady in Ermine might have said was, "Buy Gifts for Men in a Man's Store." Evidently the Girl in the Green Hat is unfamiliar with the heroic saying "Nothing ventured, nothing gained."

But the Lady in Ermine has discovered, happily, that something to wear is an intimate expression of friendship—yes, and of her own good taste.

Let us hope that the Girl in the Green Hat will graduate to see an all-important someone wearing something she has given him.

You will marvel to see how many gifts to wear may be had at Nickerson's for a one, five or ten dollar bill.

STICKNEY AND POOR'S SPICES

Here is an excellent recipe for Mincemeat

Cook four pounds of round of beef with one pound and one-half of beef suet; let cool in the water in which it was cooked. Chop the meat and suet; add eight pounds of chopped tart apple (there should be twice as much apple as meat), one pound of sugar, three cups of molasses, one-half pound of citron, cut fine, four oranges (juice and grated rind), three pounds of seedless raisins, one pound of currants, three pints of boiled cider, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoon each of Stickney & Poor's Cinnamon and S. & P. Mace, one teaspoonful of S. & P. Cloves, and broth from the meat to give the necessary amount of liquid. Cook slowly until the raisins are very tender.

MORE SHORT CUTS TO HOUSE-CLEANING.

HOME and social conditions are certainly changing, but the ideal of home never changes. The methods by which this ideal is realized are what are changing. Once it was necessary for women to make candles, that time has passed. Fifty years ago it was necessary for women to sit and spin material for the family clothing, but machinery has set us free from the spindle and given us the energy to spend on other things that make us more companionable wives and healthier mothers that we may help make our daughters' housekeeping less of a burden and more of a business—less a matter of chance and more of science.

In grandmother's day housekeeping was a happy slavery that she endured without question or thought of altering—that was womanly in her day. But it isn't in yours and mine. We have the chance to make the work that takes so much of woman's life, a business like any man's, to make it pay profits in time and money—if it is well enough done. Twenty years ago we were living a quiet, peaceful life—but the world has quickened its pace. Today we demand life and action in everything. It is the doer who appeals to us. We are dancing today where yesterday we were sitting. The day of the idle, clinging woman is over, the day of the busy energetic woman is here.

The question is how we housewives of today, with our manifold duties, can best keep pace with the times—how reflect the activity of life into the home work. The answer is educate—educate mothers and daughters in the profession of home-making—and it is a profession, one which is on an equality with the ministry, medicine, law and teaching. Since a profession implies training for and constant keeping up in one's chosen line, the progressive women of today are devoting their time to the advancement of home efficiency, along educational lines; they realize as never before that whatever lessens woman's work benefits the race. Household efficiency consists of studying each motion that goes into every bit of housework until one has developed a standard and most economical way to do ever task.

Conservation of time and energy is one of the problems that confronts a housekeeper. They may be saved in two ways—first, by attention to the way one uses strength—systematize your work—have a schedule for each day—study the arrangement of the kitchen—the work of labor-saving equipment. Modern tools are as necessary to the housekeeper as they are to the dentist or doctor who would lose time and be inefficient without the proper tools in the right place. Too many woman cling to the old methods of housekeeping and cleaning. In fact, unless you are fifty years behind the times they think you are unwomanly. They seem to think the old way is the only way. They see to it that for several days each season the house is in a turmoil, everybody in the family "put out"—"put out" about rooms all upset—meals neglected—a nervous depression comes over all with the monotonous grind of cleaning.

At the end they are ready for the doctor. They lose sight of the fact that they don't clean house just to get the dust out of dark corners, but to make the house a sweeter, pleasanter place for people to live in and that it is not exactly logical to make the house uninhabitable one month that it may be lived in the next.

Apostle of Air

KDKA Dinner Concert

At 6.15 o'clock, WBZ will rebroadcast the KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra dinner concert, presented under the direction of Victor Saudek. This concert will be sent out from KDKA, the world's pioneer broadcasting station, on both the long and short wave lengths. WBZ will pick up the short wave signals sent out from Pittsburgh and will broadcast the concert on the standard wave length simultaneously with station KDKA.

For the Notebook

Hard rubber panels are easier to drill than panels of bakelite.

Keep the receiving set out of the cellar or other damp places.

Because grid leaks go bad very often, new ones should be substituted.

For best results, the aerial should be high, but it does not have to be level.

A pointed piece of pencil lead held tightly against a crystal by means of a binding post makes an excellent "cat whisker" for a silicon or galena crystal.

As the compound material of bakelite has greater mechanical strength than hard rubber, it is more suitable for extra long panels where heavy apparatus is mounted.

All wires in a set should run as nearly parallel as possible and the leads should be as short as possible. This insures against possible feedbacks and makes the set more selective.

NO RHEOSTAT NECESSARY WITH UV 199 TUBES

Contrary to general supposition, it is not strictly necessary to use a rheostat with the UV 199 tube. If two dry cells are used connected in series, the resultant voltage will be 3, exactly that required by the tube.

Suggestion for Switch

In wiring the set, always bring the "A" battery wire, that carries the "B" negative, through the battery switch. This is a positive insurance to the set. When the switch is off, both "A" and "B" batteries are shut off from the set.

Watch Your Rheostat

Because wire of the rheostat will oxidize and collect enough dust to materially increase its resistance and cause a faulty contact between the wire and the slider, a piece of very fine sandpaper should be rubbed over the wire.

DX Conditions Last Night

It was only a fair evening for the DX listener. Static was not very heavy, but the air was not sufficiently conductive for A1 reception. While local reception was ideal, it was difficult to hear from any great distance.

The best station to come through after the locals had closed down, was WLW at Cincinnati.

This station was broadcasting orchestra music, and came through very well.

Other late entries were WAHG, WFBI, WTAM, WJR WSAI and WHAZ.

MALDEN HOLDS 'TOWN MEETING' THURSDAY

There's to be an old-fashioned town meeting in the Malden Auditorium Thursday night, the first to be held in Malden, since 1851. The event is primarily a reception to new members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce, and after the dinner the plan is to have an evening conducted on the town meeting plan, at which those present can bring forward any subject for discussion pertaining to the interests of Malden.

WEST ROXBURY VETS PLAN FIRST BIG BALL JAN. 11

Disabled Veterans' Chapter No. 1, U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 44, West Roxbury, will give its first annual ball on Jan. 11. Funds will be used to further objects of the chapter, which, at present, has no tangible means of support. The project, which is expected to be an annual feature, has been endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce and members of the Retail Board.

Hint for Panel Marking

When marking a panel for instrument holes, draw all scratch lines on the back. Then it will not be necessary to remove the lines with emery cloth. But, before drilling, be sure the holes are in the correct position.

Follow this rule for radio economy

THE life of your "B" battery depends on its capacity in relation to your set and on how much you listen in. For one to three tube sets buy Eveready "B" Battery No. 772. Used with a "C" battery* it will last a year or longer. On sets of four or more tubes either of the Eveready Heavy Duty "B" Batteries No. 770 or the Layerbilt No. 486 used with a "C" battery will last eight months or more. These figures are based on the average use of a set, which is two hours a day. There's an Eveready dealer nearby.

*NOTE: In addition to the increased life which an Eveready "C" Battery gives to your "B" batteries, it will add a quality of reception unobtainable without it.

CHARITY REAPS PROFITS FROM ELKS' BALL

Brilliant Array of Guests at Merry Dance in Copley-Plaza

And the greatest of these is—Charity.

Charity that knows no caste or creed was the beneficiary of the brilliant ball and concert given at the Copley-Plaza Hotel by Boston Lodge, No. 10, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

From the opening bugle notes of the "Stars and Stripe [illegible] the last dying strains of the [illegible] waltz, Brother Elks and [illegible] women guests joined hands [illegible] gorgeously festive function that will echo down throughout the annals of Boston Elkdom as an occasion both memorable and unparalled in its splendor.

The brilliant tempo of the ball was sounded in the preliminary concert numbers, and continued, heightened by novelty dances and song interludes, to its significant crescendo at the hour of eleven, when that "Moment Momentous" to universal Elkdom—the Eleven O'Clock Toast—was ushered in with exquisitely presented tableaux and eloquent toast.

The varied dance and revue numbers which made up the tuneful and entertaining concert, included vocal selections by Miss Grace Chadwick, and turns and twirls by the Corbett Sisters and Worth and Wentworth Company. Miller's Symphonium orchestra lent its melodious accompaniment to the Elks' gay frolicking upon the ballroom floor.

The grand promenade, led by Marshal Ambrose J. Purcell, with his corps of assistants, Esteemed Leading Knight James R. Flanagan and Mrs. Flanagan, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Cook, Colonel Ernest Hatch, drew round after round of hearty applause as the phalanxes tinged with the rainbow-hued frocks of the feminine contingent, swept in stately review.

The solemn toll of eleven halted the marching ranks, and a parade of six soldiers and sailors bearing aloft the gold crested emblem of the Boston lodge, accompanied by the city, state, and national flags, marked the impressive prologue to the Eleven O'Clock Toast delivered by Thomas Somerville, past exalted ruler of the Lawrence lodge.

The strains of "Auld Lang Syne," sung by the assemblage, quickened to the beat of dance music once more, and the merry-making Elks carried on their gay carnival scene to its ebbing denouement of mirth and melody.

Behind the elaborate mechanism of the ball were the officers of the Boston lodge, Exalted Ruler Daniel J. Kane, Esteemed Leading Knight Flanagan, Esteemed Loyal Knight Thomas F. Lockney, Esteemed Lecturing Knight Samuel Kolesky; officers of the ball committee, George W. McLaren, chairman; Frank L. Kane, secretary, and Bernard A. McMahon, treasurer. The official ball committee included Michael J. Mellody in charge of reception, Joseph N. Shafer of publicity and John J. Cassidy of the toast committee.

In beautiful and distinctive attire, Milady Elks in bountiful numbers were present to grace the gala occasion. Among the first honor line of promenaders were Mrs. J. R. Flanagan, becomingly garbed in a delicate powder blue creation beaded in pearls; Mrs. Ambrose J. Purcell, arrayed in shimmering metal cloth of gold and Mrs. Bernard A. McMahon, clad in a black chiffon costume ornamented with iridescent rhinestones.

GORGEOUS GOWNS.

The balcony box-holders included such smartly costumed matrons as Mrs. John J. Cassidy, who wore black lace embroidered in rich coral notes; Mrs. George W. McLaren in an attractive model of apple green georgette fringed with ostrich tips, and Mrs. Timothy E. McCarthy in rose velvet ornamented with crystal beads.

Other prettily gowned guests were Mrs. Joseph M. Sullivan, who lent a gorgeous note of color to the abundant feminine finery with her flame chiffon costume, contrasting vividly with Mrs. P. F. McCarron's sombre swirls of black lace accented in orchid. Mrs. Charles Levine was charmingly clad in pale green charteuse, and petite Miss Ruth McMahon added enchantment with her frock of gayly flowered chiffon.

Mrs. Frederic W. Cook, wife of the Secretary of State, was an imposing personage in jet black velvet caught at the side, drape-effect, with a rhinestone buckle. A diamond-pearl encrusted heart-shaped brooch on her left shoulder was her only ornament.

GOWNS OF GREEN.

A fascinating gown was that of Mrs. Jeremiah J. Hurley, bright green with a rhinestone buckle to catch its brocaded folds of glistening silk. Her wealth of grey hair was an ideal combination with the fresh coolness of the green.

The sea-water green of Miss May Clarrity's gown was brightened with slight touches of gold edges. Extremely bright green pumps with gold heels attracted considerable attention.

Mrs. John B. Archibald, in pink brocaded Georgette, displayed her carefully marcelled blonde head to advantage. A brilliantly hued rose was a subtle touch. Silver slippers completed her costume.

The sleek bobbed head of Mrs. John Shea, beautifully topped a metal cloth outfit, with fuchsia the predominating tone. A string of pearls and silver slippers were ideal for the effect.

Mrs. Frank L. Kane wore a powder blue gown, set off with pearls, and a delicate pink scarf. With her, Miss Alice Leary, in a gold topped bouffant pink satin affair, was a youthful delicacy. Her soft pink scarf carelessly enveloping her shoulders was lovely.

REV. P. R. FROTHINGHAM 25 YEARS IN ONE PULPIT

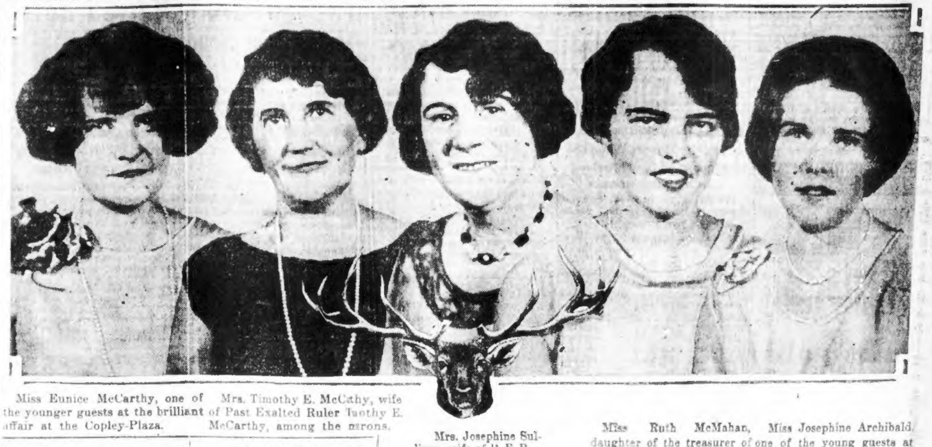
Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington street church, will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate of that church, at 8 p. m., December 17.

Rev. Paul R. Frothingham

The devotional part of the service will be conducted by the Samuel A. Eliot, D.D., president of the American Unitarian Association.

Addresses will be made by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Rev. Drs. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South Church; Samuel M. Crothers, pastor of the First Parish Church, Cambridge; Charles B. Barnes and Robert L. O'Brien. Dr. Frothingham will make the final address.

THEIR PRESENCE ADDED TO BRILLIANCE OF ELKS' BALL



Miss Eunice McCarthy, one of the younger guests at the brilliant affair at the Copley-Plaza.

Mrs. Timothy E. McCathy, wife of Past Exalted Ruler Tuothy E. McCarthy, among the matrons.

Mrs. Josephine Sullivan, wife of P. E. R. Sullivan.

MITCHELL PLAN BILLS DUMPED INTO CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 8 (I.N.S.)—Congressional interest in the air service controversy and the apparent determination of many members to enact some of Col. William Mitchell's recommendations into legislation was reflected today in a shower of bills dumped into the new session—all designed to make changes in the existing air arm of national defense.

Senator King of Utah sponsored a new bill in the Senate today to abolish the War and Navy Departments and merge their functions into a department of national defense, with assistant secretaries in charge of Army, Navy and air. A similar bill has been introduced in the House by Representative Hill of Maryland.

17,000 BOYS AND GIRLS JAILED IN SIX YEARS

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 8 (I.N.S.).—In the last six years 16,259 boys and 1,568 girls between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one have been incarcerated in the city prison in Brooklyn. This exhibit of the crime and depravity which has been rampant among the youths of the Borough of Brooklyn for the last five years is a startling and terrifying one, said the report.

Fortune Was Within Grasp of Midnite Terrors When the "Minyons of Law" Arrived

THE MIDNITE ROBERS

(Thrilin Movie in Four Senes)

Sene 1—Jimy Valentine, Jesse James and Raffles meet at Bowker and Sudbury streets in the West End in the dark of midnite. Jimy Valentine has the burglar tools tucked into the rubber boots he [illegible] from his old man.

Subtitle—"Hist," whispered Valentine, and he pointed to the grim brick walls of the Century Parlor Furniture Company on Bowker street. "There's a fortune in the safe that them grimm brick walls defends. Can they defend it against the onslawt of the Midnite Trio?" And echo answered a scornful "Noo!"

Sene 2—The Terrible Three have forced a rear door and stand before the huge safe in the office of the company. Valentine draws a hammer, a chisel, and a file from the rubber boots.

"Now to the dirty work," he whispers. "Attack the combination," urges Jessie. "Look out for George Smith, the cop on the beat," says Raffles, who is a cautious soul.

A gong sounds loudly. Raffles starts to run. "It's only the wagon goin by with drunks," sneered Jimmy. "It's the ambulance," said Jessie.

Sene 3—George Smith of the Joy street station hears the burglar alarm, and enters the building gun in hand. He finds Jimmy and Jessie in front of the safe.

"Wot now?" queried the minyon of the law, in stern tones.

"Foiled!" cursed Valentine.

"Baffled!" groaned Jessie.

"Nabbed!" sobbed Raffles from beneath the desk, where he had taken refuge.

Subtitle—The Midnite Marawders are pinched.

Sene 4—In the Juvenile Court before Judge Cabot, Jesse James, 12 years old, Jimmy Valentine, 11, and Raffles, just 9, are arraigned.

"What were you youngsters up to?" demanded Judge Cabot.

And then came a sobbing chorus from the Terrible Three.

"We seen a movie and they looted the safe. But they didn't get nabbed."

New Building for Congress Like 'Country Club'

Washington, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—All the indoor comforts of a country club are provided in the blueprints for a new office building for members of the House, submitted today by a group of architects acting at the request of Congress.

A gymnasium, swimming pool, lockers, and a lounge are included in each of the two alternate plans presented. One plan provides for expenditure of $6,500,000 and the other for $7,800,000. The plans were drawn for relief from congestion in the present office building.

HUB TOURIST BARRED IN ERIN AND THE U. S.

South Boston Man Lost His Citizenship Papers on Trip Abroad

Thomas P. Kelley of No. 67 E street, South Boston, arrived today on the White Star liner Celtic from Liverpool and Queenstown, with a new appreciation of the Immigration Bureau of the Irish Free State.

Three weeks ago he sailed in the good ship Cedric for the Christmas holidays in Ireland. Stricken ill on the way over he tore up his citizenship papers and passport in a delirium. He flung the pieces overboard. Without them he was barred at Queenstown.

Now he must go through the formality of proving his right to enter the United States.

The Celtic, aided by good weather, docked several hours earlier than expected at Commonwealth Pier.

There were 12 first cabin, 30 second cabin and 52 third class passengers to land here. E. Houghton Smith, an English artist, was among them, and during his stay may do a portrait of President Coolidge. He has already done portraits of President Harding, General Pershing, Admiral Sims and Premier Borden of Canada.

John Jeffries, 3d, of No. 105 Marlboro street, returned after more than two years abroad. In England he concluded his legal studies and was admitted to the bar.

DENIES GUILT IN SLAYING DEAF MUTE

Wellesley Police Sergeant Is Held for Further Hearing by Court in Dedham

Police Sergeant William Fleming of Wellesley pleaded not guilty in Dedham Court today to a complaint charging manslaughter in connection with the shooting to death of Walter Moran, a deaf mute of South Natick on Pond road, Wellesley. Judge Clifford continued the case until Saturday. [illegible] J. McAnarney of Quincy represented Sergeant Fleming.

Young Moran was killed in a scuffle that followed a chase of several hundred yards when Moran emerged from a clump of bushes along the road as Sergeant Fleming fired a shot at random to scare out a man suspected of hurling stones at a motorist.

Sergeant Fleming contends his gun was fired accidentally as he closed with the deaf mute. He contends that he believed the bright nickelled flashlight which Moran carried was a revolver. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Theodore Doorn, of Newark, N. J., who startled the family of Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander on Sunday when he announced that he was Leonard Kip Rhinelander and had returned to his mulatto bride, today was committed to the Hudson River State Hospital for the Insane at Pughkeepsie.

Judge Samuel F. Swinburne, counsel for Alice, and presiding Judge in the police court, authorized the commitment after a mental examination.

MAN, PRAYING, HELD IN FRAUD ON CHILDREN

Charged With Cheating Girls and Boys Seeking to Earn Xmas Money

Charged with stealing a small sum of money from a boy who was trying to make a little spending money for Christmas, Peter O. Bohld was arrested today in his office at No. 73 Tremont street.

The police allege that Bohld represented himself as an agent for a bi-monthly magazine and advertised for children to solicit subscriptions. When children applied, it is said by the police, Bohld required each to make a deposit of $3 "to insure their them all on his waiting list. While honesty," after which he placed some, according to the police, became impatient and forced Bohld to return their deposits, others are still waiting.

Leo Lienfield, fifteen years old, of No. 138 Whitfield street, Dorchester, is the complainant. Patrolman Doherty declared that when he went to arrest Bohld, he had to force entrance through another office and found Bohld on his knees, fervently praying.

First Prize for Mr. Henpecko; He's a Bird!

Washington, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The Department of Agriculture elects Mr. Wilson Phalarope as the prize henpecked husband of the United States. In fact, she is a bird—so is Mr. Phalarope.

Carrying modern tendencies to the limit, the lady phalaropes wear all the gay plumage, do all the courting and, after marriage, make the males keep house and raise the family. They live along the shore, and are said to be of a very retiring disposition. Mr. Phalarope certainly is.

A Girl's Soul Stirs and She Wonders Why: Going Out Into the World to Learn of Love

[illegible]

"Good-bye, Lloyd, the best of luck to you," said Nancy

SYNOPSIS

NANCY HAWTHORNE, motherless, lives in an English country village with her father. She has an experience with Curly Collins, a country boy she has befriended. She discusses what occurs with her father. Then comes a strange stirring and she decides to see the world. In Paris she meets Cornelia Evans, daughter of an American millionaire. The girls form a studio partnership. They aire. The girls form a studio partnership. Nancy meets Jean de Courcy, French cavalry lieutenant, who pursues Cornelia. Lloyd Evans, Cornelia's brother, and his chum, Bob Whittaker, Oxford undergraduates, come to Paris. Nancy is strangely affected by the news. Bob comes. The girls meet the boys at St. Malo. There Nancy falls in love with Bob. Returning to England after her father meets with an accident, Nancy is completely cut by Bob. She is overwhelmed.

Bob was no coward and this challenge by Lloyd took nothing from his nerve. He walked up to Lloyd with his hands still in his pockets. "Look here!" he said. "You've called me all the stinking things you can think of and I haven't interrupted. Why not let me have a chance to say something before you start hitting? If you want to smear me afterwards,—you can have a try!"

Had there been a hint of sneer or challenge in Bob's "You can have a try" it is probable that Lloyd would have hit him then and there. But there was no sneer. It was a deadly earnest [illegible] reached Lloyd through his anger.

The tiny pause was enough to make him realize that anger was a futile method of getting at the truth because it would only antagonize Bob. He pulled himself together.

Lloyd spoke very quietly. "Listen, Bob," he said. "I like Nancy awfully. She's a peach. If I'd seen any other man cut her on the street as you did this morning I'd have jumped on his face. That's why I can't believe you did it intentionally.

"See here. When I saw how things were at nine letters [illegible] and Nancy I kept off [illegible] I was glad that you and she both [illegible] [illegible] this morning.

"It [illegible] it wasn't you to do a thing like that to Nancy. For God's sake, what's the matter?"

"Everything's the matter," said Bob.

Lloyd saw the misery in his face. "Can't it be put right?"

"No!" said Bob. "I'm just no damn good, that's all. You think you know me, don't you? You judge me by yourself and think I'm a fairly normal decent sort. I wish to God I were!"

There was deep puzzlement on Lloyd's face. "I don't see what you're driving at quite."

"I didn't think you would," said Bob. "You're one of the lucky ones. You appear to be able to go through life without being bothered with this—this damned girl business!"

"Oh!" said Lloyd. "That! But isn't

DANCING AT THE ARGONAUTA

Permission to allow general dancing at the Argonauta Club will be sought soon from city authorities by [illegible] Prior, an executive of the organization, which recently opened its doors [illegible] in an old building at Rowe's Wharf.

Pending reconstruction of certain physical features of the clubrooms there has been no general dancing according to Mr. Prior today. There has, however, been exhibition dancing and fencing matches, but the members of the club have abided absolutely by Building Inspector Mahoney's [illegible] that there be no general dancing until architectural changes were completed.

These changes have been finished and I expect to ask the building commissioner to have the place inspected with the thought in mind of securing authority to allow general dancing, Mr. Prior said.

663,338 AUTO PLATES, 100,480 TRUCKS, TO DATE

The year ending November 30 was a record one for Massachusetts in the number of automobile registrations, 663,338 passenger cars being licensed, an increase of 82,369 over the preceding year.

It is estimated that 110,000 of the registrations represented re-issues against second-hand sales, but even so the count far overtops any previously made.

In commercial vehicles the growth is almost equally startling. Eleven years ago there were but 5,747 commercial vehicles in the State. Today's registrations total 100,480.

PLAY GLAD GAME OF SANTA

Countless Letters From Poor Mothers and Kiddies Must Be Answered

BE A GOOD FELLOW

You can be a Santa [illegible] yourself at Christmas [illegible] you don't have to wear whiskers.

Anyone who has a throb of sympathy in his or her heart can be a Good Fellow. There are few that have not some sympathetic feeling.

[illegible] Good Fellows [illegible] but as you know [illegible] are many in this dizzy world who have little or nothing that have plenty and a lot.

We can't have too many Good Fellows acting as Santa Claus at this season time to bring a fragment [illegible] into homes where [illegible] chance for joy.

[illegible] brings letters [illegible] letters [illegible] Good Fellow Editor of the Boston Evening American telling of these shadowed lives and the hopes of the children and the parents that kind Samaritan will lend a hand at Yuletide.

Such letters as this from Master William M., who lives in the South End:

MAMA CRIES

I am a little boy 9 years old and I have a brother 10 years old and a little sister 7 years old. Our dadys dead and our mama takes care of us. She has to work out in the coldest days in the winter and I wish she had a pair of warm over shoes to keep her feet warm. It takes a lot of money to take care of us all so we cant all ways have mittens and shoes and rubbers when we need them. We have a good dear mama she buy us everything if she had the money. We had everything nice once and when thanksgiving and Christmas comes my mama all ways cry. Cause she can't buy us things. So I hope some good people who like children we are real good children and who have more money than they need will they please remember my mother and how she wants to make us happy at Christmas time.

Thousands of letters, like this, Good Fellows! How can you turn your back on appeals of such nature?

It is the plan of the Boston Evening American to have as many of [illegible] as can play the Good Fellow [illegible] Christmastide that the [illegible] children may have opportunity to smile when the dawn of Christmas breaks.

From day to day this newspaper will publish letters from children who write of their Christmas needs and longings and many of them [illegible] their needs filled or their longings satisfied.

PLAY SANTA CLAUS.

All you have to do is to write the Good Fellow Editor of the Boston Evening American for the names and addresses for which you wish to act as Santa Claus.

Or you can write to the Good Fellow Editor stating that you want to play Santa Claus to some needy family and children and will be furnished with a case to take care of yourself and by your own method.

Here are some of the many letters received:

The Good Fellow Editor: I am writing this letter to you regarding Christmas. I have a little girl three years old who has no high shoes or stockings no dolls or any little play things also my wife is sickly and supposed to be in Hospital we have no coal in the house Ive been out of work for months and am just getting over a few weeks sickness I have a gas bill two months also light bill two months and two months behind in rent and a large grocery bill and wish you would look into my case Id like to get a Christmas dinner and a few things for the baby. Hoping you will not forget this case.

Major Moore Answers Grid Reformers

"The only way to stop interest in collegiate football is either not to play the game at all or substituting [illegible] the big [illegible] the schedule," replied Major Fred Moore, graduate manager of the Harvard A. A., in reply to [illegible] platform proposed at Wesleyan.

"Substituting another sport [illegible] football has been tried. At Columbia, the experiment was tried and the moral of the undergraduates became so [illegible] that now football is a major sport there. The trial also was tried in California, but there [illegible] received a setback.

"Probably we could decrease the interest in big games by playing [illegible] and Princeton every four or five years.

"The chief reason for preliminary games is that such trainers as Keene Fitzpatrick and many others believe that a man [illegible] in fight condition with [illegible] games. The chief interest [illegible] in the big games rather [illegible] early season contests.

American Expert Warns Fans Not to Expect Too Much From Grange

RIGHT ON THE JOB

THE Boston Evening American will give tomorrow full details of the visit of Red Grange to Boston. An expert staff of sport writers will constantly keep the sport followers informed about No. 77. A play by play story of the game at Braves Field will appear in late editions.

A HIT IN NEW YORK

The fact tha[illegible] play seems to be [illegible] in reality it's the [illegible] sional football [illegible] I believe it's here [illegible]

Boston is one of the [illegible] sporting towns in the [illegible] proven this fact [illegible] and again. The Boston fans will go so far as to back consistently a losing club. That's the real test of true sportsmanship.

New York will [illegible] yet with only a [illegible] fair football team as [illegible] show, we see [illegible] sand people rush [illegible] ball games every [illegible]k.

What does it me[illegible] because of the [illegible] ple to witness the [illegible] of football and [illegible] ability of the p[illegible] college games, the [illegible] loted only to th[illegible] the universities that [illegible] is bound to go.

Boston will, within the next few years, be backing the "Boston Beans" to the limit for in this town we can stand it, especially when we hear that the presence of the public isn't requested at a certain college's games.

Take this game tomorrow [illegible] two teams there are [illegible] men from Dartmo[illegible] College, Brown, [illegible] Hampshire State [illegible] State, Colgate, P[illegible] Syracuse, Indiana [illegible] Dame, Illinois an[illegible] W[illegible]

Let's not expect [illegible] Grange. He has been playing a lot of football and should be about ready for a rest. [illegible] remember that he w[illegible] by a strong team wh[illegible] of star performers.

Looking over the Steamrollers lineup, we find two of the greatest tackles who ever played the game. I refer to Mike Gulian of Brown and Joe Koslowsky of Boston College.

Both of these men [illegible] er Boston, and [illegible] the sorrel [illegible] West will have [illegible] ter Bean Town [illegible]

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Red Grange [illegible] his dash for the $1,000,000 [illegible] affirmed love by his [illegible] admission. When he makes his touchdown he plans to go back to Wheaton, Ill. and be a good citizen.

Just before departing for Washington Grange said:

"I told father that I was leaving college before graduating because I thought I could earn enough in professional football to repay him for what he spent on my education. But I got that much so quickly I figured I'd better go on and ge[illegible]. With what I collected [illegible] already got salted away [illegible] nearly half a million d[illegible]ars.

SPORT EDITORIAL

PROFESSIONAL football [illegible] cleaner than the college brand. Red Grange says so and he has tried both.

This declaration of the [illegible] of Illinois is worthy of consideration. Boosters of the college sport have been shying verbal bricks at professional football. They would have you believe that it is only for lowlifes and roughnecks, something to be shunned and [illegible]

"The professional boys do[illegible] nearly as much dirty playing," says young Mister Grange.

He knows. He was a marked man in his college games. The opposition set out to stop him. They succeeded on several occasions. Star backs are not handled gently. They have to take a terrific hammering.

If they crack under the [illegible] they are carried off the field, and that's all there's to it.

To many of us, not hampered by the restrictions of the highly touted college spirit there's something not exactly sportsmanlike in the manner in which a gang picks out one man and pulls him down. Somewhat after the fashion of a pack of wolves, cutting one elk out of the herd.

The college boys twist legs and quite frequently put entirely too much vim and viciousness in their methods. Every football follower knows that.

The professionals are more seasoned players. They have been through the mill and don't go wild in the stress and fury of conflict. They play the game for all that's in it, but they have had enough experience to know that unnecessary roughness and methods close to the [illegible] of illegality don't pay in the long run.

Grange, it was generally expected, would be hamstrung by his pro brothers, who would naturally be jealous because he was collecting most of the [illegible]. But Red hasn't been assaulted nor injured. He finds playing cleaner and smoother.

There is food for thought here for the college pharisees who have been holding the young man up as a thankless, hard-boiled ingrate, because he sensibly accepted the fortune tossed at his feet.

There's more envy than justice in the things the boys are saying about Grange.—NICK FLATLEY.

All this means effort. So before you decide on any such course of action be sure that his friendship and affection are worth the price they will cost. Make sure also that he has not pledged all his interest and love to another woman.

You may make every effort to win his interest that you can make without being obvious and undignified and still fail, for if his feeling for you is quite dead, of course it can't be revived. But you will have tried your best to win what was worth every [illegible] effort it cost. And at least if you lose you will have [illegible] in a sportsmanlike way. Moreover, your study of the art of being agreeable and charming will have brought many bright new interests into your life, made you more versatile and more interesting to yourself and others.

Story of a Girl Who Goes Out Into the World to Learn of Love

it perfectly natural that you should fall in love?"

Bob was [illegible] up and down the room. He stopped at this. "Man, you don't begin to understand! I suppose any time you're—worried, physically, you just go and sweat it off on the track?"

Lloyd nodded. "That's the idea!" he said.

"Is it?" Bob dropped his arm. "That's all you know! I've tried that. Now [illegible] begin to see?"

"But, my [illegible]," said Lloyd. "Couldn't you [illegible] it [illegible], away from it?"

"I've tried both," said Bob. "tried desperately, and then when I met Nancy, I thought I'd found my salvation. I thought, as you said, that I should fall in love with her. Damn it, I did fall in love with her!"

Bob went on sparing himself nothing. "I made a dead set at her. I was out to get her. And then, by the grace of [illegible], that telegram came about her father. It was like a bomb full in the face. It showed me myself,—and it wasn't a pretty sight! I saw myself wading through this slime and reaching out to pull her down into it, [illegible] In my thoughts I had already done it,—I was glad that her father got smashed up. I stopped dead. Perhaps you think it was easy! I had succeeded in making her love me. She wanted me to come and stay at Brimble. Can you realize what that means,—in the same house with her, day after day? I didn't dare read her letters. I didn't answer them. I refused her invitations. I haven't been near her. I wouldn't go near her! I wanted her to realize that she'd made a mistake. I wanted her to chuck me!"

STARING AT FIRE

Lloyd was staring into the fire. He saw Nancy's face, strained and white, as it had been throughout the drive, poor kid!

"I—I'm sorry, old man," he said. "It's hell all round. I don't know what's to be done."

He crossed the room, opened both doors and went out, closing them behind him.

"My God!" he murmured. "I had no idea—Poor old Bob! Poor devil!"

Lloyd brought that mud-spattered motorcycle to a stop at the foot of the [illegible] outside the Hawthorne cottage.

"[illegible]," he muttered. "I feel as nervous as a [illegible] but it's the only [illegible] thing."

Lloyd [illegible] Nancy seated on an old log. [illegible] her hands was a golf stick with which she was drawing patterns [illegible] the grass.

Lloyd called out when he was still [illegible] paces away. "Hullo, there [illegible]!"

The face [illegible] lifted to him showed no surprise, no pleasure. She merely became aware of him.

PRAYER FOR HELP

It was [illegible] an oath that Lloyd swallowed, although it took that form. It was really a prayer for help. He went up to her and held out his hand. She gave him hers.

Nancy [illegible] as if she were in a dream. [illegible] Lloyd glanced at her face. "How am I going to tell her?" he thought.

"Nancy!" he said. She turned. "Yes, Lloyd?"

"You're not really listening," said Lloyd. "Would you mind, just for a minute?—That's better! I'll say it quickly, before you go off again!—Will you marry me, Nancy?"

The corners of Nancy's mouth began to quiver. She turned her face away.

Lloyd didn't wait for an answer. "I know I'm a blundering fool," he said, "the sort of comic person that one never takes seriously, but I don't believe I'd be an utter dub as a husband if I could ever persuade a girl to believe it. Really I don't, honey! You see, honey, I didn't know it at the time, but you knocked me for a goal in Paris. The reason I was crazy to get to St. Malo was because I'd decided that you were the first woman I'd ever met and the last one I wanted to. But when Cornelia told me that you—that—Well, after you'd gone, I couldn't sit still with it, that's all! France seemed like a squirrel's cage, and if I hadn't gone dashing around it, I—Why, Nancy! Please don't do that! Nancy!—Oh, my God!"

Nancy had put her head down on her arms on the top of the gate and was sobbing hysterically. Finally she stopped.

"I'm—I'm all right now," she said.

"Thank God for that," said Lloyd. "Forget that I ever said it."

"I won't ever forget it as long as I live," said Nancy. "Only I'm most awfully sorry that you ever wasted a thought on me."

"I haven't done that," said Lloyd. "I love you, that's all."

"And I [illegible]," said Nancy. "I—I haven't come out the other side yet. I don't know where I am."

"Will you send me word," said Lloyd, "if ever you find that you wouldn't object to seeing me around? If I should happen to be in New York it wouldn't take more than seven days to hop across."

"My dear, my dear!" she cried. "You tempt me to [illegible] I don't want to hurt you, Lloyd, but I must, for your own sake and for mine, too. I'm not worth marrying. So you see, I—I couldn't ever send you word, Lloyd, dear!"

A man in khaki came out of one of the doorways of Brimble.

At the end of the village he heard the voice of a girl singing to herself. He saw her seated at an easel, painting.

A throb of different emotion stirred beneath his tunic. He turned in her direction, went up to her and saluted with a smart click of the heels. "Miss Nancy!" he said.

Nancy started round at his voice. "Why, it's Curly!" she cried. "I'm awfully glad to see you. Good heavens, how you've changed!"

"The regiment's ordered to India," said Curly. "I hope to be a sergeant pretty soon. Then me and the missus'll be able to lay a bit by on the extra pay."

Nancy's eyes opened wide. "I didn't know you were married, Curly! I'm awfully glad."

"Yes," he said. "And we've got a little 'un, too. This is 'er picture, Miss."

With immense pride he held out a photograph which showed a smiling anaemic-looking girl holding a plump infant.

Nancy felt something happen to her. Suddenly her muscles stiffened. She felt a wave of hatred surge through her, hatred that was [illegible] up with herself [illegible] fate, [illegible] hatred that was [illegible] because [illegible] was a jolly little face that looked up at her.

As she gave the photograph back she heard herself say warmly, "She's perfectly sweet and the baby's a lamb! You must be so proud, Curly."

ASKED PARDON

Curly began shuffling his feet. "Beg [illegible], Miss, I—I want to ask you to [illegible] what I did that night [illegible] ... you know. It's made me fair sick, worryin' about it."

"I'm sorry," said Nancy. "Thank God he's going!" she thought. "I forgave you," she said, "before I even came down the hill. It wasn't your fault."

"Thank you, Miss. I feel the better for knowin' it," said Curly. "I told the missus about it one night and she fair gave me 'ell, she did! She'll be glad to know that you've forgive me."

He pivoted on one heel and marched on.

Nancy stood very still, holding her breath.

"Oh, shut up!" she said to herself. "Pictures for you, my dear," she said. "pictures,—not children!" and wetting her brush, she wrote in the corner of her board, "Nancy Hawthorne, spinster."

Slowly she went home.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

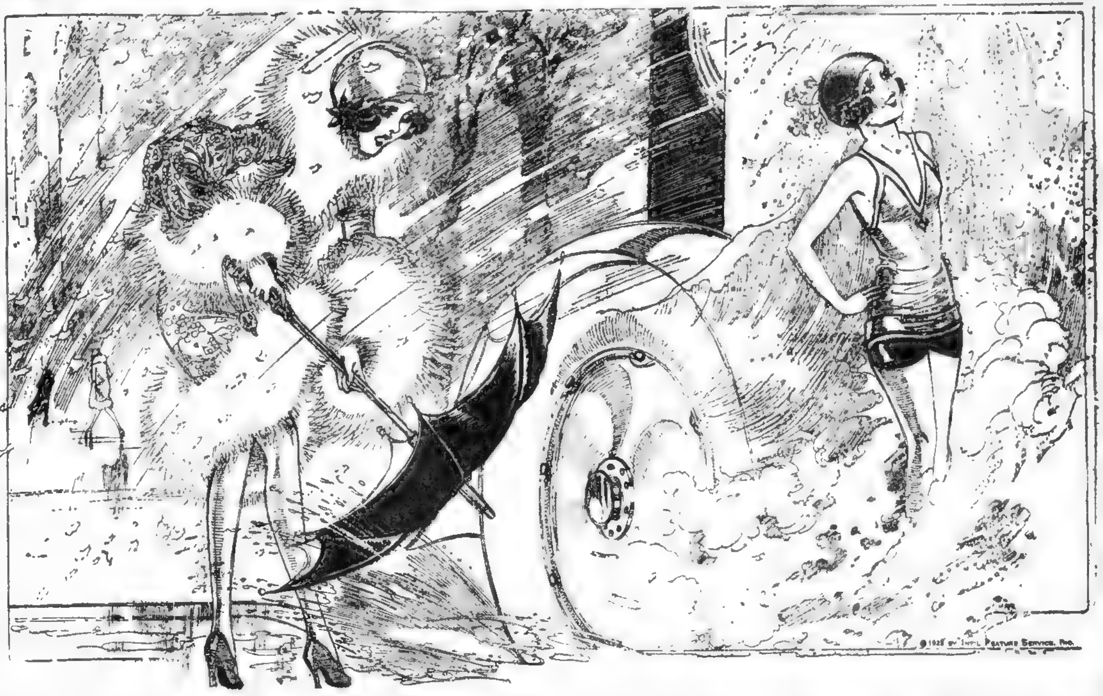
Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PINEX for Coughs

Oh, for Summer! or the Friend in Need

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



©1926 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

ONCE on a Summer day when the air was like a steaming towel, the sky a grassy blue as if it had caught on fire [illegible] dropped and the crowds sought the edge of the mighty water that [illegible] a little trail of white around all the land on the earth [illegible] bathing suit that was cool, for the area of cloth, as a bathing suit [illegible] well be, Sherry said that if ever she was cool again she would [illegible] wish Summer back again!

[illegible] a girl's cheek [illegible] weather to her. She wished she lived in Russia and [illegible] far north [illegible] a sleigh with [illegible] horses [illegible] silvery [illegible] and be wrapped [illegible] fur.

And [illegible] came a day—as days come—when Sherry was [illegible] wrapped to the eyes in fur [illegible] the cold [illegible] snow [illegible] and splashing as she walked. [illegible] a big car swept close to the curb [illegible] its great doughnut of a black tire through the [illegible] water in the gutter and sprayed it out in a great fan at Sherry's silver gray stockings and silky furs!

And when she spotted the spots on her pretty stockings and skirts and saw a fleeting vision of herself not caring if a ton of sea water splashed on her and said through her pretty white teeth:

"What I need now is my bathing suit!" NELL BRINKLEY

MAKING OF A HUSBAND

By Ann Lisle

"YOU'RE the [illegible]," he said, seizing [illegible] arms [illegible] drawing me [illegible]. You saw the [illegible] behind [illegible] stupidity [illegible]. It was awful to watch her [illegible]. But I know it takes the [illegible] masculine [illegible] to whip [illegible] into shape to a tender [illegible] darling. You [illegible] see something of your protege yet. I see what you're up to. I understand you."

[illegible] as Jim kissed me good-bye and started down the path I found [illegible] growing serious and [illegible] thought that claimed [illegible] attention.

[illegible] really understand me? [illegible] marriage experiment [illegible] partnership in happiness [illegible] do I begin to comprehend [illegible] own husband?

Are we teammates or only married [illegible]?

[illegible] several days after Jim had [illegible] to May Valleau that we knew [illegible] her petty thievery and were [illegible] give her a chance to [illegible] the girl went around wrapped [illegible] of silent reserve that I [illegible] attempt to break. I felt [illegible] entitled to work out her [illegible] in her own way, and if her [illegible] happened to be that of tact [illegible] no one had a right to in [illegible].

May gave me my lunch every day [illegible] hours more often than [illegible] for which we had bar[illegible]. But neither she nor I com[illegible] and Jim was far too deeply [illegible] with trying to arrange [illegible] transfer of Carlotta Sturges' [illegible] from Mrs. Montayne to a [illegible] purchaser to pay much attention to anything at The Birches.

Carlotta's house has caused trouble in the Dalton Sturges office from the moment when Carlotta's husband Tony Norreys, fell heir to the Earldom of Forsyte and transferred himself and Carlotta to his ancient [illegible]. [illegible] Mrs. Montayne [illegible] things out [illegible] decided to [illegible] the rent she had paid [illegible] the purchase price [illegible] Mrs. Montayne [illegible] would not [illegible] in terms of a magnificent mansion. And she was [illegible] ing to renege on the whole deal.

Jim's first job as a [illegible] firm of Tompkins & [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. Montayne and [illegible] to the [illegible] as well. It was [illegible] Jim to handle the [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] Mrs. M[illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible].

To escape the [illegible] around [illegible], May Valleau [illegible] like a disheartened ghost and [illegible] for the long evening [illegible] while Jim sat [illegible] papers and documents with [illegible] a word for me between dinner and bedtime. I determined to [illegible] almost every day.

On the second day [illegible] I [illegible] home [illegible] Valleau laying the [illegible] while the [illegible] appearingly out to greet me [illegible] living room.

"What are you doing [illegible] late?" I asked.

"I don't take something [illegible]," protested, pathetically.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

EACH frail flower brings to the vase something of the garden's grace, and within the shadowed room scatters loveliness and bloom. It will perish in a breath, yet it proudly mocks at death, flaunting for a little while all it gleaned from Summer's smile. What man will admit the rose more than he of courage shows? Who would let the lily prove more than he of faith and love? Why not like the [illegible], then, give your gifts to fellow [illegible]. Why not light each dark [illegible] with a little joy and grace [illegible] from God's garden [illegible] hope to shadowed [illegible] a dark domain [illegible] bloom again? As [illegible] vase brings the [illegible] garden's grace, man from fairer [illegible] the light embrace all the [illegible] bring richer fruits and blossoming.

FOXY GRANDPA TELLS DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"THAT'S a nice coat you have on, Foxy Grandpa," said the captain of the coasting steamer on which we were going up to Alaska.

"Yes," said I. "I've had it since I was a very young man."

"It would cost you a pretty penny now," said the skipper, examining the fur, for it was real sealskin, and you don't see very much of that now, and so it is almost worth its weight in gold.

"I suppose so," I replied.

"Too bad the way they used to butcher the seals. The herds now are very small—in spite of the laws of American and other governments for their protection. You see lawbreakers go out to sea and catch the seals when they are asleep on the top of the water. The only place where the poor things have any protection is when they go to the islands for the Summer."

"When do they start for the islands up North?" I asked.

"In the Springtime," explained the captain. "They swim around the ocean the rest of the year, but at this time they swim north and go to the islands to live. When I was a young sailor I've seen them in tens of thousands, and I declare they used to look like a great herd of buffaloes as they climbed up on shore, following the leader.

"I'd like to see that sight," said [illegible].

"I wouldn't be surprised if you [illegible]," said the kind captain. "Far[illegible] close to shore, [illegible] a herd I'll call you, [illegible]."

"That would be fine, captain," said Bobby, smiling.

That night we went to bed and as we tucked in Bobby said:

"I hope the captain won't forget his promise about the seals, Foxy Grandpa."

The captain didn't. For about 6 o'clock the next morning—just as I was dreaming I had worked out the hardest cross-word puzzle I had ever tackled—there was a knock on the door. I jumped up and there was a sailor. He saluted and said:

"The captain says for Bobby to hurry up on deck and see the seals."

Never in all my life have I seen that boy dress so quickly. He was out of the door like a shot and I followed as quickly as I could.

There they were—the captain said it was a small herd, but it looked endless to me. There was the bull—the leader—and after him followed hundreds and hundreds of seals, all flapping their way up the rocky shore of the island.

It was a wonderful sight and one which I shall never forget.

"How long do they stay there?" asked Bobby.

"Three months," replied the captain, "and do you know, Bobby, when they go to sea again there will be hundreds of new baby seals in the herd and each mother will have to teach her baby to swim."

"Each mother has just one baby?" asked Bobby.

"Yes," replied the captain, "and she feeds it with her own milk. But, do you know, there is a funny thing about those grown seals. They live on these islands for three months without eating."

Just then the bugle sounded for breakfast.

"I'm glad I'm not a seal," shouted Bobby, as we went below for our ham and eggs.

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

You don't like to be kept waiting, do you?

A lot of business men do not seem to know that this is a human trait. As a consequence, they lose money.

I know of a pompous financier who purposely makes every caller of lesser rank than himself wait even though his bumptiousness is doing nothing but twirling his thumbs or otherwise idling away many hours. To such visitors, after they are admitted, his manner always is snobbish. But let a magnate greater in power than himself call and he becomes disgustingly obsequious. Needless to say, this purse-proud gentleman is widely unpopular.

The other day I made my annual Christmas pilgrimage to New York with my band of young hopefuls bent on seeing Santa Claus. After Santa had received definite and elaborate instructions as to what to bring, the purchase of a few toys "to take home" was in order.

After money had been handed over, no change appeared. I asked what was causing the delay. The girl told me that it usually took a long time to get back change. "Haven't you cash registers?" I asked. "No, I wish we did, because people often complain about having to wait so long for their change," she replied.

If I have my way I'll avoid this store in future.

"He's in conference" has been the favorite excuse among certain types of business organizations for making people wait. If you become inquisitive and insistent, you're very often told that the inaccessible gentleman is talking with some other employe or employes. Underlings are apparently instructed that such confabs are sacred, and must never, under any circumstances, be disturbed.

The importation of the stallion Sir Galahad by A. B. Hancock for his two establishments will be of vital importance to the breeders of this country.

Steeple chasing in America is on the eve of the most elaborate expansion and development in the history of the sport, according to Joseph E. Davis, president of the National Steeple Chase and Hunts Association. Belmont, Saratoga and Maryland featuring jumping events intend next season to devote greater attention to the cross-country sport.

The United Hunts have increased the value of the Temple Memorial Steeplechase from $5,000, added in 1925, to $10,000, added in 1926.

UNITED FRUIT BARS TROPICAL TRAMPS

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Ever since some one produced that alliterative phrase of "tropical tramp" the idea has been prevalent that a large proportion of the Americans who labor in the vicinity of Capricorn are indeed tropical tramps.

* * *

It happens that the biggest power in the vicinity mentioned is today a great Boston industrial, the United Fruit Company. This concern reminds us of Dean Swift's: "And he gave it for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before would deserve better of mankind and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together." The reason is because Fruit is performing that very sort of service.

I have it from President Victor M. Cutter's own lips that the "tropical tramp" is barred from Fruit's ranks. The workers put into Central America by Fruit must have the blood, spirit and endurance of the pioneers. Like the pioneers, they are builders of towns and cities.

* * *

They wrest land by the thousands of acres from the wilderness and plant it scientifically with bananas and other fruits. They build mercantile navies and harbors and piers for their service. A very large percentage of these men come from New England, because these northeastern States have always produced the rugged type desired.

Sir Henry Thornton, head of Canadian National Railways, expresses doubt concerning success of regional grouping of railway systems now being discussed in the United States.

"Danger is," he said, "that you may get railway system so big that it will lose all human contracts; that there will be few contracts between men and officers." He declared feeling in England is that grouping has not been a success and persons whose opinion is respected are thinking about some form of nationalization as a remedy. "Moment politics comes in, you are done," he said.

Boston produces the finest clothing in the world. At least John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland Co., says so. And "J. N." is the acme of sartorial perfection, says a New York financial writer. The genial auto manufacturer has purchased all his clothes in Boston for years. He visited the Hub two weeks ago to witness the Harvard-Yale football game, in company with his family and Mr. and Mrs. Morin Hare. Mr. Hare, incidentally, was the Eli quarterback in 1902-03. While in Boston "J. N." combined business with pleasure by replenishing his wardrobe before the game.

Speaking of automobiles, Mr. Willys intends to feature the "pony" or lighter car next season. As to Willys-Overland, plant capacity is to be increased from 1,000 to 1,700 cars per day through a new plant layout and without any plant extension.

* * *

I am told that the Seneca Copper Company made its first shipment of copper rock to the mill Dec. 1, 15 cars, or a total of 800 tons, being hauled by the Copper Range Railroad to the little Tamarack mill, a section of which has been overhauled for Seneca's use. Shipments for the present will be intermittent, but as soon as the underground force becomes adequate, rock will be forwarded daily, at least enough to keep one stamp head in commission.

* * *

Herbert E. Smith, general sales manager of the United States Rubber Co., has been elected a second vice-president of the company in general charge of sales activities of all commodities except tires, succeeding George H. Mayo, retired.

* * *

Colonel Arthur N. Payne, at present transportation manager of the Associated Industries of Massachusettes, will join the staff of Gerrit Fort, vice-president in charge of traffic of the Boston & Maine Railroad on Jan. 1 as a means of promoting closer contact between the railroad and its shippers.

COTTON SELLS LOWER ON GOVERNMENT REPORT

New Orleans, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The government's final cotton estimate of 15,603,000 bales and total reported ginned to December 1 of 13,875,684 proved much larger than had been generally expected. As a result when trading was resumed after the customary fifteen minutes interval, the first trade in December on the call showed a drop of 105 points, or more than $5 a bale. January dropped off 83 points, and the loss diminished as the call proceeded, until October showed a loss of only 42 points. The government's estimate for lint cotton means a crop, including linter, etc., of 17,000,000 bales.

DIVIDEND RATE RAISED BY AMERICAN BRAKE

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company today increased the annual dividend rate on common stock from $5 to $6.

LETTERS FROM THE LUCKLESS POUR IN

to you hoping you will be able to send Santa Claus to my house I am a little girl ten years of age my father is put away in the insane house my mother works so hard she is not well and now cant work steady no fire wood or coal I have never had any thing at Xmas no toys or nothing I think Santa is comes only to the rich children I have two sisters 13 and 11 years we all need stockings and I need a coat for school I have to stay home cold days as I have no coat to wear we had nothing for thanksgiving as mother was sick with Slattic Rhuemitism we wont have nothing for Xmas either mother says so but maybe the Dear baby Jesus will send Santa to us I would not want much if mother were made happy she is so good to us all. God Bless you.

P. K.

(She lives in South Boston)

Dear Mister Santa Claus, I am a boy of 12, and need warm clothes, to go to school with I have been in the hospital with blood poison in my leg, the Doctor says he thinks I will be able to start in school after Christmas but my mother says I will not be able to go to school until I have warm clothes like other boys she has to figure pretty close to pay bills and live on 18 dollars a week and buy wood and pay 6 dollars a week for rent we have no money for clothes she has been in the hospital three times, and this is got the best of my dads wages now Santa if you dream of getting me some warm clothes for winter I wear a 12 year old size and my shoe size is 6 I really need warm clothes and if you know of anyone that has a sled they dont need I would be pleased to get it now Dear Santa I hope you will be able to make my Christmas Jolly with some warm clothes for the cold weaher.

(He lives in Brattleboro, Vt.)

Dear Santa Claus:—

I am a little girl 10 years old I have four brothers younger will you please come to see us for Xmas as we can have no toys for Xmas we need some warm clothes too mittens stockings caps, my brother 9 years has no coat to wear to school, my father does not help us any he is away all the time and my mother is sick, my baby brother is sick too and has no shoes atall. Please come and see us and make us happy for Xmas.

LONDON HAS SCRAMBLE AFTER NEW BUSINESS

Reopening of the London investment market to foreign loans after a long-standing embargo has resulted in a scramble for new business contrary to the traditions which prevailed before the war, according to reports received here. Competition among London banking houses, it is said, is now following the more or less open policy which prevails in New York, with prospects that new foreign financing will go to the highest bidder.

Buy New England goods — support New England industries — best in the world.

The Country's O. K.

Motto: Stop Whining and Work

When your friend asks, "What do you think about fundamental business conditions?" vary the monotony with some FACTS. Mr. Hoover supplies THESE:

Five years ago wages were 99 per cent. above the rate before the war. Last year they were 120 per cent. above the pre-war level. Wholesale prices of goods that were 126 per cent above pre-war prices in 1920 have fallen to 50 per cent. above. In other words, wages are 128 per cent. higher, wholesale prices of goods only 50 per cent. higher.

We have about all the money there is, business is good. High finance is the most powerful influence in the country, which means that for awhile at least things will boom, railroads and other corporations will make big profits. Those profits leak out from the big pockets into the little pockets.

On the whole, if we in America don't spoil things for ourselves there doesn't seem to be anything to spoil them for us.

The one big BUT, however, is in this question: How high are retail prices going? Wages are up 128 per cent., and wholesale costs of supplies up only 50 per cent., and so we ought to be well off. But how much does it cost to distribute the whole thing?

There's our trouble—EXPENSIVE DISTRIBUTION.

Boston Latin's Triumph

A Source of Pride to the City

For winning the prize offered for the school whose candidates made the best record in the Harvard entrance examinations, the Boston Evening American extends its warmest congratulations to the Boston Public Latin School, and to its headmaster, Patrick T. Campbell.

Out of ninety-six boys admitted—one-tenth of the whole freshman class—twenty-four Boston Latin boys are on the roll of honor. The average of the seven highest Boston Latin candidates in a group of special subjects selected by the committee, was 89.12 per cent.

This is a striking achievement. It marks a great triumph for Boston Latin, for its able and well-beloved headmaster and his loyal staff of teachers.

Boston is proud of the fact that the Boston Latin School, under the inspiration and leadership of Headmaster Campbell, is the best High School in the capital city. But it will be an even prouder day for Boston when the thorough work done at the Boston Latin School can be acclaimed here and elsewhere as representative of the sort of work done in all the public schools of Boston.

Meantime, let us be thankful that the Boston Latin School has richly earned the prize for excellence which it has received, and the prestige among parents and teachers which it enjoys here and elsewhere.

One Loving Cup

Germans and British Drink From Cup

There is one wise thing about our British brothers. When they are through with a fight they forget it as quickly as they can, shake hands and say "Let's get back to business."

This method was illustrated in London, at a Guildhall banquet, when Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary of the British Empire, drank from a loving cup and passed it to the German Ambassador who drank amid great applause.

There is always one very appropriate feature about that loving cup drink in England. When you stand up to drink from a loving cup, the man at your left rises and stands behind you. It puzzles Americans at first, but it was the custom in old days, when a man had his face buried in the cup, for his best friend to stand behind him and keep him from being stabbed in the back.

The British at least are willing to do away with the stabbing, if the world will let them keep what they have, and get business going again. "Bygones are bygones, and back to business" is the British motto.

Our Uncle's Debt

How Much Cash?

Uncle Sam has now settled about seven and one-half billion of his foreign debt. The next question is, How much will he really GET from the settlements?

They consist in arranging dates upon which the money is to be paid. Just how foreign countries are to pay us seven thousand millions in gold or its equivalent, unless they can sell us enough goods to get the money to pay us, is yet to be seen.

Ungrateful Republics?

Monarchies Also

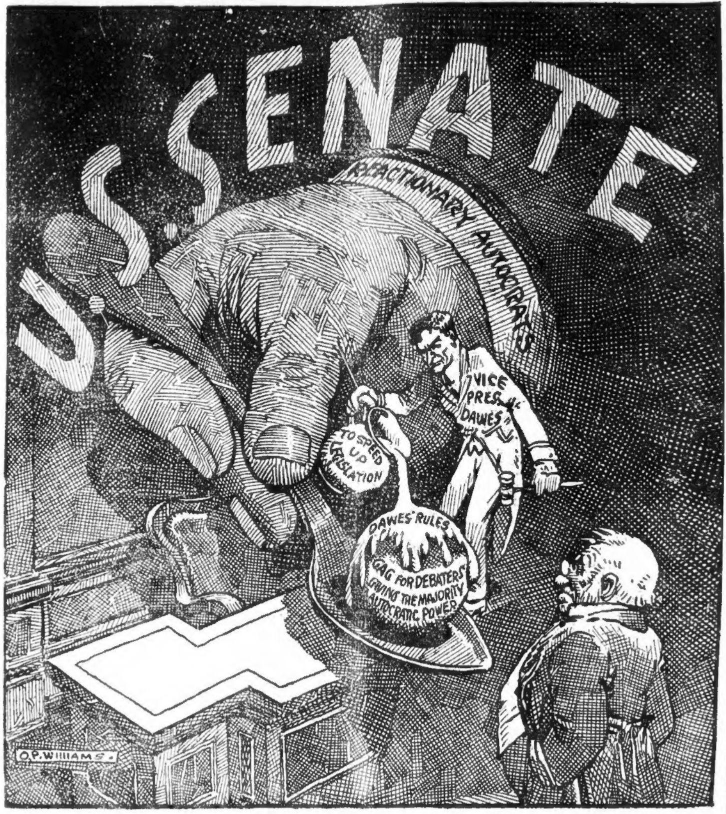
Ten years ago Lloyd George stood between Britain and defeat by the Germans.

He supplied the money, manufactured the ammunition, forced the adoption of a unified command of the armies. He is the man that WON the war. Three-quarters of the Englishmen have forgotten it; they never liked him very much, anyhow.

But British historians a hundred years hence will do him justice, and show that he saved the British Empire and put the Kaiser in Holland.

They say that republics are ungrateful; monarchies also.

A Nasty Pill, Even if Coated



JUST at the time when the Senate is showing signs of a liberal attitude of mind—towards La Follette and his like—General Dawes persists in reaction.

The so-called Dawes rules for the Senate are coated with a sugar of progress and reform. That makes them none the less a dose of gagging size.

Talk in the Senate at least does no harm. Legislation can do endless harm. It is not facility in rushing legislation through that the country needs. It is long and serious consideration before anything else is added to the already ridiculously swollen body of our statutes.

That is why General Dawes' proposals are reactionary, whatever he calls them.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when thousands of fellows are breaking off their engagements with young ladies until after Christmas.

THIS isn't very chivalrous but it's cheaper.

YOU can't mix romance with business.

WHY spend twenty-five or thirty dollars on a dame when Santa Claus gets all the credit?

ONE fellow was so cheap that he broke into his girl's home last Xmas Eve and put one of his cards in all the presents.

HE even carved his initials on the Christmas tree.

AFTER he got all through he went over to the mantel and took ten cents out of her stocking to reimburse himself for the carfare.

THIS showed that he thought a lot of the girl, otherwise he would have made the trip in a taxi.

HE could have padded his expense account so that there wouldn't be anything left in her stocking except holes.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

THE following is a real letter: It is more than a letter—it is a cross section of modern life. It depicts, more powerfully than any essay or editorial can do, the problem which confronts many homes. For that reason I am giving it to you just as it came to me.

HOW DO YOU GET THAT WAY?
LEAN ON ME!
ELSIE ROBINSON

My Dear Elsie!

Would you or the gang please give some moral support, or a bit of censure, whichever I need?

My problem is this—for five years before we were married, my husband and I studied at the same university, then graduated at the same time, and obtained good positions.

At the time of our marriage there was no question of my giving up my work, as we needed the double income to meet various outside demands. But in the last year my husband has reached a place where his income is more than adequate to keep us in comfort, our debts have been paid, and so the financial need of my work has ceased.

Now that he can give me all any sane woman would want, he insists that I quit working and become a parasite. In fact, he's been on the rampage so violently that it is reaching a point of an open break between us.

Had I a child the argument would be settled. But I haven't. We have both wanted them, and have not denied them, but some ill fate has decreed otherwise.

Can you imagine my spending my day having the "Soosies" in to lunch, or playing bridge with Mary and Jane all afternoon, or putting a gloss on my nails just to kill time? What in heaven's name I'd do with my day I can't see.

tween us. "1925."

I believe that "1925" should keep her job. I believe that the right to work and to be financially and spiritually independent is one of the inalienable rights of humanity. And I think that her husband has no more right to demand that she cripple her life by renouncing her chosen labor than he would have to demand that she starve her body by rejecting food. What do YOU think?

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

THE surest way to make the path of life smooth and easy is to spread it with applesauce!

Helen Rowland

Some people throw the applesauce around with a trowel, others lay it on thick with a palette knife, some feed it to you with a spoon, and some apply it delicately with a brush.

No matter how it is done, some of it is bound to stick—but why be a tyro at the art, when, by following a few simple rules, you might be an expert?

Telling a man how wonderful and clever and noble he is is a waste of time, labor and material. He knows that already. It was "old stuff" when Grandmother was a flapper.

If you want to be loved—really LOVED—tell a man how you admire his work! What a wonderful lawyer or doctor or salesman or boot black or street-cleaner he is!

• • •

That is the place to spread the salve where it will do the most good! And, heaven knows, all the world loves a BOOSTER!

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

THE natural resources of the United States have been so overwhelmingly abundant that for several centuries they were used continuously and recklessly without being impaired. The vast forest regions withstood the strain of the building of a nation for many, many years before they began to show signs of deterioration.

When the forests showed their first signs of thinning out, the matter gained the attention of prominent men who were interested in the ultimate welfare of the country as well as its immediate success. They determined to preserve what Nature had kindly bestowed upon them. The policy of national preservation came to the fore.

It was in following out this policy that Arbor Day came to be a holiday. It is a day set apart for the planting of trees. If we plant trees continually to take the place of those that are being cut down, we will have no fear of any permanent loss in our forest resources.

Practically every State in the Union and portions of Canada celebrate this custom. The ceremony usually takes place in late April or early May. On the day set apart by the State you can find everybody, from the school children to their grandparents, busily engaged in planting the seed of a tree that will come to its full growth long after they have lost the faculty of seeing or appreciating their handiwork.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

On "DIFFERENT OUTLOOKS."

IT SEEMS that the Older A MAN gets
The LESS attractive
MOST women APPEAR
And YET, the older SOME WOMEN get, the MORE
They want MEN—
Not for THEMSELVES,
But for what the men
Can GIVE them.
WOMEN who were spoon-fed
From childhood on ADMIRATION
EXPECT IT all
Their lives through;
SOME get it from their CHILDREN. Others, less
Fortunate, continue to LOOK for it from MEN.
MEN have THEIR troubles, TOO;
A YOUNG MAN looks to
ONE WOMAN for respite,
Understanding, companionship;
A man of the WORLD looks
For the SAME THING in THREE different women;
An intellectual man knows
Enough not to expect
TOO MUCH from woman,
And FINALLY he stops
LOOKING.

MARRIAGE HAS STOOD THE TEST BETTER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MRS. ROSE PASTOR STOKES in speaking of marriage recently said that it was an institution that made for immorality.

Her contention was that a man and woman who lived together as husband and wife, but did not love each other, were guilty of immorality.

Occasionally this may be true. There is much immorality committed in the name of marriage.

It must be remembered that all relations between the sexes have been tried, and marriage has stood the test better than any of them.

Marriage is not an invention of the church or the State. It is not something that has been imposed upon man by an outside authority.

People get married because they want to. They just naturally prefer living with one mate all their lives.

And this is a more wholesome preference than promiscuity.

We have tried all of the relations, such as polygamy, concubinage, and so forth. And marriage is the best relation so far discovered for the protection of the ideals of the adult and the welfare of the children.

Marriage is an evolution, the consummate flower of the growth of humanity in civilization. It is not an artificial barrier imposed upon us.

Of course marriage, being human, is faulty, and there are many instances of breakdown. But it is all a question of average.

The unfortunate victims are not so plentiful in marriage as they would be in any other kind of relation.

Without any marriage laws and with promiscuity established as a habit among men and women, civilization would soon fall.

Marriage exists today not because of the penalties against irregularity, nor because of the evils that afflict the marriage relation, but because lovers want it.

A man gets more pleasure out of living loyally with one woman than he does out of living disloyally with a great many. This he does as a rule and as a general thing, and as long as this holds true the marriage relation will continue.

CLARA MORRIS, THE THINKING ACTRESS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

CLARA MORRIS, the actress whose death recently carried back the minds of the small band now left of those who once felt the thrill of her dramatic power, to the stage of the seventies and eighties, left for posterity something which may endure much longer than the fading memory of her theatrical impersonations. It is a book, "Life on the Stage," which I—though not even an amateur actor,—have read through more than once, with as much profit as pleasure.

Clara Morris was a thinker and reasoner on the problems of her art, and not a mere beginner and reciter by rote of the words of others. She was known as a great emotional actress, so effective that even Sarah Bernhardt impetuously praised her work; but that work was inspired and guided by a strong, active intelligence. Miss Morris was a student of acting and of the art of expression from the time she first entered a theatre as a little girl anxious to help her mother, picked up for the ballet and the chorus.

Won Tears.

In a short time people were inquiring about "that wonderful Columbus ballet-girl who wins tears with tears—is she really one of the ballet, or is it just a story for effect?"

For her intelligence, and the fact that she took even her humble work seriously, and tried to make the most of it, had led to her being called in an emergency to play a small part in support of a star. And her genius, backed by her earnestness, had, to everybody's astonishment, turned the small part into a "hit."

All through this autobiographical book, which is worth a hundred novels for revealing character, runs the vein of rationality, showing the method and the reason that underlie success not only in every form of art but in every human occupation whatever. Throughout her whole career Clara Morris retained her right to the compliment which an old actor, irritated by the stupidity of the other members of the ballet, addressed to her:

"You've got your head with you."

She worked with her head, as well as her voice and her eyes. When the magic call of New York came to her in the then little Western city where she had attracted the attention of traveling stars, she brought "her head with her" and quickly entered into the confidence of the famous manager, Augustin Daly, who was, above all, a student of the stage. She studied costume history, languages—in short, everything which could round out her intelligence and strengthen her work.

Students of oratory will find much of interest to them in the incidental glimpses which Clara Morris has given of the secrets of the art of expression and of the way to cultivate them. I do not mean that there is anything in the book purporting to teach such things.

They are to be seen only between the lines, and felt in the general tone and character of the work. The triumph of an actor or actress, like that of an orator, is a purely personal experience, and I do not know of any one who has more vividly directed its intoxication than Clara Morris. But always she reveals the means by which triumph was achieved.

It recently has been said in obituary notices and appreciations that she was an uneven performer, and one apt to set at defiance conventional rules. In that she showed the oratorical nature of her gifts. The orator and the actor blend when the latter, as Miss Morris often did, forgets that he or she is playing a part and draws the emotion entirely from an inner well.

Endless Rehearsals

A single incident related by her illuminates this point. When she came to New York, at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, the endless rehearsals that preceded her first great triumph irritated her.

"I could not act even the least bit at rehearsal. Foreign actors will act in cold blood at a daylight rehearsal, but few Americans can do it. I read my lines with intelligence, but gave no sign of what I intended to do at night. Of course that made Mr. Daly suffer great anxiety, but he said nothing—or looked at me with such troubled anxious eyes that I felt sorry for him. One gentleman, however, decided that I was not to put too fine a point upon it—'a lunkhead.'"

SLOW START IN MORNING, BAD LUCK ALL DAY

That morning nap after the alarm clock goes off is responsible for a lot of misery every day of your life.

That just-a-minute wait, before you jump out and race with all possible speed in order to get to your work in time, is the cause of many of your mistakes in one day.

Then your temper suffers if some little thing goes wrong while you are speeding to catch up time wasted.

You get excited and angry, perhaps leave your wife in tears, and you are not in good condition all day at the office, all because of that other "wink" after the alarm has rung.

Isn't it mighty foolish to be so slow in getting up in the morning?

Twenty minutes earlier would give you time to shave, dress and eat comfortably. It would mean a few pleasant words with your family and give you time to look around you as you make that daily trip to the office.

A bad start in the morning means discomfort all day.
